TERRIFIC STORM SWEEPS HONG KONG. WORLD-FAMOUS PORT

SHIPS WRECKED

DROWNED IN HUNDREDS TYPHOON

Heroic Crews Go Down With Doomed Ships and Whole Coast Is Strewn With Wrecks. Heavy Loss of Life and Great Property Destruction.

MANILA, Sept. 18.—Without the slightest warning of disaster, Hong Kong was visited to-day by a terrible typhoon, which swept across the island on which the city is located and wrought great damage in the harbor. This is the news contained in cable dispatches received here from the Chinese city.

Enormous property loss has ben caused and hundreds of lives destroyed.

Coast Lined With Wreckage.

It is reported that the coast for miles is lined with the wrecks of small sailing craft caught in the terrible storm and driven ashore.

In Hong Kong harbor many vessels foundered and others were driven ashore.

The loss of life was heaviest among the crews on vessels in the port. It is reported that in numerous cases not a man escaped from the ships.

Heroic fights were made by several of the crews to save their ships, but they could do little against the force of the storm. Standing bravely by the vessels, they were driven ashore, and hundreds of sailors lost their lives in the breakers after their ships struck.

Two Ships Lost With All Aboard.

The German steamer Johanne and the British steamer San Cheung went down with all hands, it is reported.

The steamer Fustian of the Hongkong & Macao Railroad foundered, only her purser and mate escaping so far as is known.

In the city the typhoon wrought great damage. Whole rows of houses are reported blown down, and it is feared there has been heavy loss of life. Details, however, are lacking.

Natives in Panic.

Business is at a standstill and the natives are almost in a panic.

It is reported there has been considerable loss of property among members of the foreign colonies.

A number of the foreign residents are also reported injured, but so far as known there has been no fatality among them.

STEEL ROOF FALLS IN; 2 DEAD, 9 INJURED

WORKMEN PINNED UNDER COLLAPSE OF A BUILDING IN LAWRENCE.

LAWRENCE, Sept. 18.—Two men were killed and nine seriously injured to-day in the collapse of the immense steel roof over the coal pocket in course of construction at the new Wood Worsted Mill on the south bend of the Merrimac River in this city. Three of the injured are on the dangerous list at the Lawrence General Hospital, and not expected to recover. The cause of the accident was the toppling over of an immense derrick located in the centre of the structure.

The dead are:

EDWARD DYER, thirty-four years old, foreman of bricklayers, who lived on [illegible]bin road, Dorchester.

MICHAEL DELEVAR, bricklayer, of Lawrence.

The three workmen who will probably die as the result of their injuries are:

TONY CONCINTO, thirty-five years old; fractured skull.

NUNZZIO COTTIALLA, forty-two years; left arm and left foot crushed, and latter amputated at hospital. Has a wife and six children in Lawrence.

DANIEL MURPHY, a rigger employed by steel contractor; body lacerated and crushed.

The other six injured were laborers, and with the five mentioned were carried down into the grinding mass of wreckage when the derrick toppled over and crushed in the centre of the roof. They are:

Leonard Barbe, Nicholas Laponti, Albert Duboin, Louis Bean, James Callan and L. H. Haynes.

Had the accident occurred ten minutes later the fifty bricklayers who were loitering about, waiting for 8 o'clock to begin work, would have been crushed beneath the roof. At 9 o'clock the twenty carpenters and fifteen steel workers employed on the job would have been at their stations.

The coal pocket is 130 feet by 250 feet and was entirely covered by steel roofing built by the New England Structural Company of No. 110 State street, Boston. Several carpenters had already begun work, and the many steel men and bricklayers had entered the pocket. Suddenly the ponderous roof was heard to break in the centre, and the entire covering, weighing many tons, fell in with a crash.

Workmen rushed to the relief of their fellows when they heard the crash, which sounded like the roaring of many guns. The scene was made the more pitiful by the frantic screams of the men who were pinned in under the heavy girders.

A hundred hands hoisted the rafters and plates from the bodies and the police were called to help in the rescue. After an hour's work it was believed all were extricated from the ruins.

The Wood Worsted Mills are in course of construction, being nearly completed. The plans call for the largest mill in the world.

PROVIDENT BANK CASE FOR THE GRAND JURY

MORAN WILL TRY TO FIND OUT IF THERE WAS CRIMINALITY IN FAILURE.

Announcement is made at the office of District Attorney John B. Moran that at the special session of the Grand Jury, which begins September 24, inquiry would be made to learn if the Provident Securities and Banking Company was criminally wrecked. This action will be taken because of protests by the depositors, who up to the present have not received a cent of the money they intrusted to the institution. In cases where it is found that banks have been wrecked through criminality, indictments for larceny, embezzlement, false entries or misapplication of funds are of the character usually brought against persons accused of the responsibility.

Charles F. Weed of No. 53 State street is the receiver of the defunct institution, and to-day he said:

"I shall take action as soon as the District Attorney has made whatever move he finds warranted by evidence. I intend to bring civil suits against the officers and directors of the bank. I shall endeavor to hold them responsible for the collapse of the bank."

The directors include some of the most prominent citizens of Boston. Among them are General Samuel Dalton, Colonel Sidney Hodges and General Brigham. Cashier Flagler is the brother of Henry M. Flagler of New York, a Standard Oil magnate of vast wealth. Mr. Weed has the books of the defunct bank. No statement has been made as to whether the Grand Jury would be asked to inspect them.

District Attorney Moran retained Attorney Henry D. Yeaton to investigate the institution's affairs and to learn and report how it came to fail, and if its collapse was due to or involved any infraction of the law. Many of the depositors were persons in humble circumstances, and their losses have borne heavily upon them.

M'MASTERS BREAKS AWAY FROM QUINCY

Editor William H. McMasters has broken away from the Quincy gubernatorial searching party and has joined the ranks of the insurgents in Ward 11, under the leadership of ex-Alderman William F. Donovan.

McMasters intends to go on the stump for Daniel J. Kiley for the Senate, thus throwing down the gauntlet to Editor John F. Fitzgerald, his newspaper rival.

N. H. Republican State Convention Opens;

CHURCHILL IN LEAD

Senator Gallinger Calls to Order Most Remarkable Gathering in Recent Years.

Enthusiasm for Anti-Railroad Candidate; Machine Forces Divided.

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 18.—Winston Churchill enthusiasm was the opening note in the Republican State Convention. The novelist's followers stole a march on the other delegates and were the first in the hall. When Senator Gallinger, temporary chairman, who was beaten in the primaries as a candidate for delegate, stepped upon the platform in Phenix Hall, he was faced by about 150 Churchill men, who had marched, bearing banners, into the hall in a body and had taken the first eight rows in the centre. This gave them the vantage point. Mrs. Churchill, who sat in the first row of the gallery with friends, smiled in approval.

"We want Winston Churchill!" shouted Sullivan County men with a roar.

Senator Gallinger was in weak voice. He called the convention to order at 12 o'clock. The Greenleaf, Floyd and Pillsbury men came into the hall in irregular fashion and found banners flaunting in their faces bearing such inscriptions as "The People Demand Reform and You Refuse it at Your Peril." "We Demand Abolition of Free Transportation." "The Poor and Not the Rich Should Ride Free."

Orators Draw Lots.

Senator Gallinger introduced Professor A. J. Maxham, known as the "Sweet Singer of Vermont," who sang a song about "castles in the air" and another calling for a tariff as high as they make them.

Senator Gallinger invited the men who were to make the nomination speeches to go into a side room and draw lots for precedence. Judge James W. Remick of Concord will nominate Churchill, Edwin F. Jones of Manchester will name Floyd, Benjamin F. Damne of Newmarket will present Pillsbury's name and former Governor C. B. Jordan of Lancaster will speak for Greenleaf.

The machine workers for the railroad bosses showed great anxiety because of the cheers for Churchill.

The railroad clique claim that Churchill cannot be nominated. Greenleaf and Floyd men profess confidence. But it was believed that the convention might take the bit in its teeth and smash headlong through bossism.

There are five candidates in the field, but the real fight appears to be between Churchill, Charles H. Greenleaf and Charles M. Floyd. Churchill has made an extraordinary canvass for the nomination as a Lincoln Republican, advocating the smashing of the railroad ring and having New Hampshire governed by the people instead of a monopolistic corporation.

Greenleaf and Floyd are dividing the railroad support.

None Can Guess Results.

Floyd is backed by Railroad Commissioner Henry M. Putney. Senator Gallinger is behind Greenleaf. Last night it looked as if Greenleaf's support was wavering, but the delegates who were counted for him were threatened, begged, implored and coaxed until their spines were stiffened.

BROKER FOUND DEAD; MAY PROVE SUICIDE

PIONEER MAKER OF POTATO CHIPS DESPONDENT OVER MANY REVERSES.

John E. Marshall, stock broker and well known as the pioneer manufacturer of "potato chips," was found dead on the floor of his office at No. 24½ Exchange street, this morning, under circumstances that indicate suicide. The body was discovered by his confidential clerk, Benjamin S. Davis.

"When I arrived at the office this morning I found Mr. Marshall lying on the floor, face down," said Mr. Davis to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "His two hands held a handkerchief pressed close to his face, and the fabric, his face and hands were stained yellow, and the odor of chloroform was very strong."

Finds Employer's Body.

Everything in the office was in order, and as far as is known nothing is missing. It is known that Marshall was despondent yesterday because of heavy losses in the stock market, and it is possible that this may have preyed upon the man's mind to such an extent that he decided to give up the struggle.

Marshal is married and lives at No. 221 Washington avenue, Chelsea. He was only thirty-seven years old, and had been regarded as a successful operator in the market and well known in the financial district.

When Clerk Davis entered the office this morning at 8:30 o'clock he saw nothing amiss until he went to the desk occupied by his employer, and saw the body of a man lying prostrate upon the floor, directly in front of the desk. He immediately recognized it as that of his employer.

Davis rushed out of the office and notified the police of his discovery. The police took charge of the place and the body was removed to Briggs's undertaking establishment and the medical examiner notified.

The news quickly spread down State street. There were many theories offered to account for Marshall's death. It was asserted that he has recently met with heavy losses. Certain investments which he made were failures, it is said, and yesterday he appeared worried over something.

Had Been in Poor Health.

Mr. Davis further said that Mr. Marshall had ben in por health for a long time and took little nourishment other than crackers, malted milk, etc.

"Mr. Marshall was once worth considerable money, which he made in the potato chip business. He has a wife and a fourteen-year-old son, and has always been accustomed to living in pretty good style.

Unable to Pay Claim.

"Of late, however, the business has not been very profitable, and although he left no money that I know of, I don't think that Mr. Marshall owed $100.

Last night he was unable to pay claims to the amount of $43, telling his creditors to come around this morning and he would try to fix them up."

20 RUSSIANS SLAIN BY JAPS

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 18.—Advices have been received from Japan of a fatal affray between Japanese poachers and Russians off the Kamschatkan coast which resulted in the killing of a Russian officer and nineteen men and the killing of a number of Japanese, including Lieutenant Odake and a Japanese captain of a fishing vessel.

Another report tells of the firing on the Japanese fishing boats by the forts of Vladivostok.

The Russian journal at Vladivostok says the action was due to the fact that the Japanese were sketching fortifications and sounding.

COAL MINERS WIN OUT.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Sept. 18.—The Vandalia Coal Company has granted all demands of the union, the strike has been declared off, and the 3,000 miners will return to work to-morrow.

BONI'S MOTHER HIT BY STONE

PARIS, Sept. 18.—News has just reached here of an outrage of which the Marquise de Castellane, mother of Count Boni, was a victim while she was travelling in an automobile. The marquise was going from Padua to Venice, when a large stone was thrown at her.

It struck her in the face, causing severe injuries. The condition of the marquise yesterday was satisfactory.

ACTRESS-HEIRESS IN INSANE HOSPITAL

DENVER, Col., Sept. 19.—Miss Fanny Lothian, a young and beautiful actress and singer, heiress to a part of the estate of Thomas Lowthian, a Denver mining expert, has been adjudged insane in New York and confined at Ward's Island.

PERRY, ALLEGED BIGAMIST, HAS CASE REOPENED

Judge Revokes Sentence, Believing Second Marriage Was in Good Faith.

The sentence of John Perry of Cambridge, who was sent to the House of Correction for two years on a bigamy charge last week by Judge Bell in the Middlesex Superior Court, has been revoked by the same justice and the case was re-opened.

It was shown that when Perry married his second wife, he did so in good faith, believing his first wife dead, and because of this fact he will not have to go to jail. It was arranged that Perry pay his first wife four dollars a week, and his second wife two dollars a week, as a contribution to their support. The first wife is Mrs. Rosa Perry, who came to Boston from California, and wife No. 2, whom Perry married two years ago, was Miss Carolina Anjos of Cambridge.

CONVICTED OF ASSAULT WITH MURDER INTENT

Frank Tracey Found Guilty by Middlesex County Jury.

By a sealed verdict returned by the jury in the Middlesex Superior Criminal Court to-day, Frank J. Tracey was found guilty of assault with intent to murder. He will be sentenced later.

Tracey is the man who, in company with another, attempted to rob the house of Jacob Bancroft at No. 380 Harvard street, Cambridge, August 18. He was trying to escape from the building, which was surrounded by police officers, when he was held up by Special Officer McNamara, and in the struggle that ensued he shot the officer. The man conducted his own case.

PARTISANS LABOR STRENUOUSLY FOR VICTORY IN N. H. CONVENTION

Delegates Pack Like Sardines in Little Phoenix Hall—Only 100 Outsiders Admitted—20 Tickets to Each Candidate

Before the convention began there was a noticeable bracing of the lines of battle.

If machine influences were withdrawn it looks as if Churchill would be nominated with a rush and a hurrah. It appears as if a majority of the 805 delegates favor him personally. But this is the most extraordinary State convention ever held in New Hampshire. Nobody can tell what is going to happen.

It is said that Greenleaf men will go to Churchill before they will permit the nomination of Floyd. There is talk that at least 100 Greenleaf men will be shifted by railroad influence to Floyd after the first or second ballot.

That rumor brought forth the threat by other Greenleaf followers to go over to Churchill.

VIGOROUS WORK OVER NIGHT FOR ALL CANDIDATES

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 18.—The usual work of a "night before" was unavailing, and the five entries—Charles M. Floyd of Manchester, Winston Churchill of Cornish, Charles H. Greenleaf of Laconia, Rosecrans W. Pillsbury and Stephen H. Gale of Exeter—were all out early upon the track scoring down for the word. The starting judge is Jacob H. Gallinger, M. D., of Concord, New Hampshire's senior United States Senator. Dr. Gallinger raps the convention to order, although he was licked as a member of the Greenleaf ticket in his home ward—the fourth—being present in his capacity as chairman of the Republican State committee.

There are certain indications that Dr. Gallinger has not entirely recovered from the Churchill victory in Ward 4. He seems to have something on his mind.

Samuel C. Eastman of Concord, a former speaker of the House, is chosen permanent presiding officer. Here again is a physical reminder of Winston Churchill's strength in the Capital city, for Squire Eastman is another Ward 4 also ran, and he is quite becomingly meek.

Most Remarkable Convention.

Never before in the memory of men now alive has New Hampshire seen such a political convention as this. Never before were so many elected delegates personally present. The number entitled to seat and vote is 805 and mighty near every mother's son of them is on hand. The inadequateness of the box like Phoenix hall was never so manifest. It is up a pair of stairs. There were not seats enough on the floor and scores of delegates are backed up into the gallery.

The result of all this was that there are only 100 seats for the public and Chairman Gallinger has parcelled these out to the five candidates in lots of twenty. General Gale, the Exeter shoe manufacturer, with his universally admitted dozen votes, got as many gallery tickets as any of the four men actually in the race. When this became known a good many delegates talked of announcing their candidacies. "Darned good way," they said, "to get some tickets." They did not speak soon enough, however.

And so far as forecasting the result is concerned, chaos ruled right down to the opening of the convention. The night apparently saw the complete frittering away of the Rosecrans W. Pillsbury candidacy. On the one hand the Machinists seemed to be, if anything, more bitter against him than ever. Now, however, they claim to have discovered the utter weakness of his boom, and are inclined to smile pityingly but scornfully at it. They call him fakir and other things.

Churchill Will Not Bolt.

And on the other hand the leaders of the Churchill reform household declare their firm intention to have nothing to do with Pillsbury. Nothing, at least, in the sense of even considering throwing any Churchill strength to him. Thus, early in the day, the AMERICAN correspondent is in a position to say on the very best authority and in the most positive manner that, come what may, Winston Churchill will not bolt this convention. He will not accept, much less seek, a nomination from the Democrats. He will not run independently.

"And indeed, why should he?" says his authorized spokesman to the AMERICAN.

"He will at once prepare for the campaign of 1908. Folks want to bear in mind that the Lincoln Republican Club was not organized until two months ago Sunday, on July 16.

"You have seen its growth. Everybody knows its strength with the mass of the people. Now, then, Colonel Churchill is going to win out to-day, but supposing that he should not. Just supposing, mind you. Well, we shall organize Lincoln Republican clubs in every city, every town, every ward in New Hampshire. In 1908 they cannot stop him. In any event, we have won a great moral victory. You have seen the platform. You know that it declares for new methods of taxation, so that all interests may bear a just proportion of the public burden. It also puts an end to the free pass curse, calling for a legislative plan of mileage for legislators and specifically limiting free passes to officers and employes of railroads, men in the mail and express service and persons in misfortune.

"Principles Will Triumph."

"Then we get our drive at the lobby, in calling for the registration of legislative agents and a statement of their fees and expenditures, and, finally, call for the election of railroad commissioners and some other officials by the people.

"It may be, of course, that the party is not quite ready this year to take the Lincoln Republican Club's candidate, but it has accepted the Lincoln platform, and that is victory enough. None of us was a place seeker and we can be content, if we have to, with the triumph of our principles. Yet we expect to nominate our man.

"It certainly does seem to me that this convention cannot nominate Charles M. Floyd of Manchester, burdened as we say he is by the championship of Railroad Commissioner Henry M. Putney, after having adopted the Winston Churchill platform."

Colonel Churchill's spokesman had hardly left the AMERICAN reporter when who should come along but Mr. Putney himself.

"Floyd inside of our ballots," he said, and not another word. Putney was cheerful this morning. The day was to make or break him. If Floyd was indeed to be nominated Putney was to be the great political boss of New Hampshire and the last of that race.

Fight for a Square Deal.

The one thing demonstrated at the "Pelican" last night was, as has been said, the apparent weakness of Pillsbury and the scattering of his reputed support.

General Gale continued to be taken as a huge joke. Most of the time the only occupants of the Exeter millionaire's headquarters were himself and his fidus Achates, Colonel Tom Walker.

"What does this candidacy really mean?" the doughty Colonel was asked.

"Why," he said frankly, "We are scoring for position, that's all. If anything breaks we are here to pick it up."

Winston Churchill's rooms were crowded throughout the evening. He went out to dinner and he closed up early, driving away from the hotel to spend the momentous night at the home of a friend. All the politicians said that the Churchill crowd was a queer bunch.

"Confound 'em," said the pools, "you can't get one of them to admit the possibility of their idol's defeat."

The Churchill delegates are mostly young and mostly new to politics and to Concord. They are not mixers. They hang together and flock alone. In their rooms are several banners. One of them says: "We stand for a square deal for labor, capital and corporations. We ask the support of all delegates who love New Hampshire and believe in a square deal."

MAYOR DISCLAIMS WRITING "INTIMIDATION" EDITORIAL

D. J. KILEY

EDW. W. DIXON

RIVALS IN SENATE FIGHT THAT HAS STARTED WARD 8 WAR.

Declares He Is Not Responsible for Article Now Being Probed by Moran.

Kiley Accuses Fitzgerald of Attempting to Bulldoze Ward 8 Voters.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald disclaims any and all responsibility for the recent "intimidation" editorial in the Republic, the publication which he has always been regarded as owning from the ground up.

The question of responsibility arises out of the editorial printed under the caption, "Ward 8's Political Duty," and which Daniel J. Kiley alleges is an attempt on the part of the Mayor to intimidate city employes in Ward 8 into voting as the Mayor wishes. The matter is now being investigated by District Attorney John B. Moran, who has invited Kiley to bring any evidence of such "intimidation" as he has. Kiley says he will certainly accept Mr. Moran's invitation.

Meanwhile the Mayor says he isn't responsible for that editorial.

He says he did not write it, adding:

Nothing to Do with Each Other.

"The Republic takes care of itself and the City Hall administration takes care of itself. They have nothing to do with each other."

"You, as Mayor, then, disclaim all responsibility for the editorial referred to?"

"Absolutely so."

"Is it your view that, as publisher of the Republic, you might be held responsible for any editorial which would involve you if you personally made the statements in it?"

"I am not a lawyer, but my judgment would not lie in the direction of the affirmative."

Daniel J. Kiley first called Mr. Moran's attention to the editorial. Mr. Moran wrote to Kiley as follows:

Mr. Daniel J. Kiley:

Dear Sir—I am in receipt of your letter of the 15th inst., relative to the editorial contained in the Republic of that date.

At the special sitting of the Grand Jury next week I will present such evidence as you may furnish me tending to show the committal of any offence. Yours,

JOHN B. MORAN,
Sept. 17. District Attorney.

Discharge Ward 8 Men.

In spite of the threat on Kiley's part to bring him before the bar of justice, Mayor Fitzgerald seems determined to carry on his war against Lomasney, Kiley and the Ward 8 machine. Last night, at the close of work, three more residents of Ward 8 were notified that their services would no longer be required by the city, making six in all to be discharged since the declaration of war. What has aroused special ire against the Mayor in Ward 8, and, in fact, all over the city, is the fact that two of these men are veterans of the Civil War and old employes of the city.

THE FALLEN IN WARD 8 WAR

Patrick J. Maguire, foreman of the North End yard, Street Cleaning Department, $1,400 a year.

John J. Hayes, inspector in permit office, Street Department, $3 a day.

Michael F. Barry, inspector, North End paving yard, $3 a day.

Thomas F. Kelley, foreman Municipal Printing Plant, $1,560 a a year.

Timothy F. Murphy, foreman North End yard, Street Department, $1,800 a year.

James H. McMain, sub-foreman patrol division, Street Cleaning Department, $3 a day.

The men to go last night were Patrick J. Maguire, a veteran of the Civil War and foreman at the North End yard of the Street Cleaning Department; John J. Hayes, an inspector in the permit office of the Street Department, and Michael F. Barry, inspector in the North End yard of the Paving Department.

Score the Mayor.

All three have been considered stanch supporters of Martin Lomasney and the Hendrick's Club, and their discharge is directly traced to the war between the Mayor and the Ward 8 leader.

When the three men discharged appeared at the Hendrick's Club last night and notified their leader of the fact that they had been let go without any explanation whatever, Lomasney and Kiley promptly went into conference, and shortly afterward the following statement, scoring the Mayor, was given to the press:

"How ridiculous it is for a mayor to be continually weeping in public for the oppressed and downtrodden people in foreign countries and on the 276th anniversary of the city's birth to suspend another old soldier and two or three other competent officials because they will not vote as he directs.

"Talk of bossism! Why, Boss Tweed or Boss Croker in their palmiest days never had the audacity to discharge an old soldier for not voting as directed.

"Boss Fitzgerald will find on September 25 that the intelligent Democracy of the Third Suffolk senatorial district will repudiate him and his contemptible methods by rolling up a substantial majority for Daniel J. Kiley. (Signed)

"MARTIN M. LOMASNEY."

MUSICAL TREAT COMING.

A musical treat is in store when the Navassar Ladies' Band, composed of young ladies, who have met with great success on their tour of at the Boston Theatre next Sunday evening. They are to be the leading feature at New York Hippodrome soon.

116 ARRIVE ON WINIFREDIAN

Two Boston men who have been canoeing on the rivers of Germany were among the 116 passengers to land from the Leyland liner Winifredian, which docked today from Liverpool. They are S. P. Cabot and A. S. Roberts. Their trips took them along the Moselle river and the greater part of the upper Danube.

Other passengers were the Rev. Horace Dutton of Auburn, A. H. Ward and family of Milton, Rev. and Mrs. Richard Wright of Newburyport, W. O. Lee of Lynn, Commander William Hoovgaard and family, Mrs. William Wilson, known to Bostonians as Madame Hopekirk, a pianist who has appeared in many of the Symphony productions, was also a passenger.

HONOLULU, Sept. 18.—The steamer Magnolia, which went ashore on Midway Island, is said to lie in a dangerous position and the cargo is being thrown overboard in an effort to lighten the ship sufficiently to float it.

$500,000 FOR SALVAGE.

HONOLULU, Sept. 18.—It is stated that the cost of salving the steamer Manchuria, which came into port yesterday, will amount to over $500,000.

WORST FOR TWENTY YEARS.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 18.—Eleven schooners have been wrecked at Belle Isle recently by storms, and seven others, with over 100 persons aboard, driven ashore on the Labrador coast, although only four fatalities have been so far reported. It is the worst disaster since 1886.

SHIP PRINCE EDWARD SOLD.

The steamer Prince Edward of the Dominion Atlantic Railway Steamship Line has been sold to Swedish parties and will be run as a passenger steamer between Sweden and Germany.

ENTERPRISE LINE SOLD.

FALL RIVER, Sept. 18.—The Enterprise Transportation Company, which for the past eighteen months has operated a line of steamboats between this port and New York in opposition to the Fall River Line, has passed into the hands of the Dupont Powder Company.

SCHOONER DOES RECORD RUN.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 18.—The four-masted schooner William P. Hood of Fall River, Mass., arrived here yesterday, after a record run of forty-eight hours between New Bedford, Mass., and Hampton Roads.

POSTAL CLERKS WANT FREEDOM TO JOIN UNIONS

The United States Postoffice Department will not permit railway mail clerks the privilege that all men out of public service enjoy—the privilege of free and independent organization, according to individual personal choice. Affiliation with any organizations not classed as fraternal or for "the good of the service" is prohibited in a general order to the first division, railway mail service clerks. They are all in New England.

Many railway clerks are discussing this order as illustrating the truth of the BOSTON AMERICAN editorial of September 14, entitled "Trying to Make Serfs of Government Employes."

The order, which many of the clerks believe strikes at their constitutional rights, was issued by W. S. Shallenberger, acting Postmaster-General. He invites their attention to that portion of his last annual report relating to postal department employes' organizations. In the Shallenberger order especial attention is invited to the concluding paragraph, reminding employes of their "supreme personal allegiance to the Government and of the overshadowing of authority of the department."

"Organizations within the department to receive its sanction in any degree must have for their object improvements of the service, or be of a purely fraternal or beneficial character. With any other purpose in view they are detrimental to the service, to their members and to the public."

The acting postmaster also "invites" the attention of the R. M. S. clerks to other passages in the Postmaster-General's report, and emphasized is this passage:

"My duty as head of the department is to insist upon loyal and efficient service from every employe as an individual, and without any thought of his affiliations with any organizations. I recognize every employe as an individual, to be appointed, advanced, transferred and in all respects treated upon merit."

FIREMEN CHANGE NAME.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 18.—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen voted last night to change the name of the order to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers.

GRANITE STATE A. F. OF L. BEGINS CONVENTION

Special to the Boston American.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 18.—The annual convention of the New Hampshire State branch, American Federation of Labor, opened in Rechabite Hall at 11 a. m. to-day with sixty delegates attending out of a possible 120. Many of the delegates are also delegates to the Republican State convention in Concord, which tends to lessen the expected attendance.

The convention was called to order behind closed doors by State President J. A. Legassie of Berlin. The address of welcome was delivered by Mayor William E. Marion.

After appointment of a committee on credentials, which began work immediately, E. Gerry Brown of Brockton, chairman of the committee of fifteen which organized the Independence League of Massachusetts, was presented to the convention. Mr. Brown came by invitation of several of the local delegates, members of the Portsmouth Central Labor Union, who wished to hear of the organization of the league, its purposes and methods. Mr. Brown described to the convention the objects of the league, saying in part:

"The name Independence League is suggestive of the political attitude labor men should take. They want to be independent of influences that rule only so long as they seduce the laboring men. What labor demands is legislation for the common welfare. It asks for no class legislation. It wants only justice."

State President Legassie will probably retire from office at the present election. There seems to be little contest for offices and probably First Vice-President William Linehan of Concord will be advanced to the presidency and the other officers step up in regular succession. The convention is expected to be in session three or four days.

9 GIRL SWIMMERS NOW ENTERED FOR AMERICAN'S BIG CUP CONTEST

South Boston, Dorchester and East Boston Are Now Represented.

Regular List Closes To-day, and Competitors Should Lose No Time in Registering.

Still more champion girl swimmers of Boston keep sending in their challenges for the swimming contest at City Point next Saturday afternoon for the silver cup offered as winner's prize by the BOSTON AMERICAN.

When the Swimming Editor came down to work to-day he found some letters awaiting him, also some girls.

The letters were from Rose Anderson of No. 30 Wordsworth street, East Boston, and Annie O'Connor of No. 26 Locust street, South Boston. They want to enter the contest. Annie O'Connor writes:

"I am no champ, but a good candidate for first place."

The Swimming Editor wonders how that strikes the other champs.

Miss Anderson lives only five doors from Aisle Aykroyd, who entered yesterday. She merely says she has decided to enter.

Two Sisters to Enter.

The two girls who were waiting for the Swimming Editor were Misses Katherine and Anna Berlo, sisters, living at No. 9 G street, South Boston.

They are pretty well known as swimmers over at the L street baths. Katherine is fourteen and already possesses one medal, the prize in the girls' sixty-yard swim at one of the L street water carnivals. Anna is sixteen years old, and while boasting no medal, is said to be a clever swimmer.

Both girls are pupils of Swimming Master William C. Rowe, instructor at the women's side of the L street bath. Both are daughters of Mrs. Lizzie Berlo, well known as a splendid swimmer. Mrs. Berlo, by the way, accompanied by Mrs. Lizzie Brainard of Dorchester, swam across the widest part of Dorchester Bay yesterday, Mr. Rowe following them in a boat. The women finished strong and fresh in a trifle over forty minutes.

Nine Girls Now to Compete.

The four entries received to-day make the list of contestants to date as follows:

Mary McDonough, No. 564 East Third street, South Boston.
Margaret McDonough, No. 564 East Third street, South Boston.
Annie Moriarty, No. 521 East Sixth street, South Boston.
Aisle Aykroyd, No. 20 Wordsworth street, East Boston.
Rose Pitenoff, No. 337 Freeport street, Dorchester.
Rose Anderson, No. 30 Wordsworth street, East Boston.
Annie O'Connor, No. 26 Locust street, South Boston.
Anna Berlo, No. 9 G street, South Boston.
Katherine Berlo, No. 9 G street, South Boston.

Look over that list of entries, you girls from other parts of the city. Are you Charlestown and South End girls going to let the cup go to Noddle Island, South Boston or Dorchester without making even a struggle for it?

Perhaps there are no girls in the other parts of Boston who know how to swim. Already South Boston has six entries out of the nine. But Dorchester has a lively representative in Rosie Pitenoff, while Rose Anderson and Alsie Aykroyd are depended upon by the Noddle Island contingent to hold up the East Boston honors in good style.

Regular List Closes To-day.

Remember, girls, that if you want to have a vote on the distance you need to get your entry in on the regular list, which closes to-day, and not wait for the supplementary list, which holds open two days longer.

There is widespread approval of the offer by the BOSTON AMERICAN of a challenge cup to settle this burning question of the girls' swimming championship of Boston. At L street baths, at City Point, at Freeport street and the other municipal bathhouses, the girls are being told by their swimming instructors and their elders that they have a chance at last to settle the argument for this season at least.

There is to be a band concert at the race to add to the interest in the actual swimming contest. Proprietor L. E. Bova of the Head House will have a band there for the afternoon of the race.

Miss Alsie Aykroyd and the Boston American Trophy for Girl Swimmers.

Conditions of Hub Girls Championship Swimming Match

Race to be held Saturday, September 22, at City Point, South Boston. Hour to be announced later.

Captain E. J. De Freitas, of City Point Life Saving Station, to be referee.

Age limit is twenty years.

Candidates to send name, address, age and record (if any) to Swimming Editor, Boston American, No. 82 Summer street, by Tuesday noon, September 18, with choice of distance.

Range is limited from 100 yards up to one-half mile.

Regular entries close at noon, Tuesday, September 18.

Supplementary list closes at noon, Thursday, September 20.

Only those entering by Tuesday noon to have vote of distance.

WOMAN FLAYS 'BARON,' HELD FOR BIGAMY

Boston Mother of Miss Jewett, Whom Waldeck-Sofeld Deceived, Scores Him.

WOULDN'T GIVE HIM CASH

One of the most vitriolic flayings ever administered to nobility, alleged or otherwise, is contained in the opinion of Mrs. Charles Hanley, of the Hoffman House, Berkeley street, concerning "Baron" August Franz Eugen von Waldeck-Sofeld, now held in $2,000 bail in New York after pleading guilty to a charge of bigamy in marrying Miss Blanche Weston Jewett of this city, Mrs. Hanley's daughter.

The latest dispatches from New York say that the "Baron," when arraigned in the Jefferson Market Police Court, tried to make his sobbing bride admit that she knew her marriage was not a legal one. The girl indignantly denied this. Then the "Baron" pleaded guilty and was held for the higher court.

The "Baron" refused to discuss his title, saying "What difference does that make?"

Mrs. Hanley does not take the matter so lightly. Here is her story of the family experiences to date with this "Baron."

By Mrs. Charles Hanley.

"Baron August Franz Eugen von Waldeck-Sofeld? I'm glad he's arrested. I suspected him from the moment I heard of him, and I was myself arranging to bring about his arrest before he could sail for Europe with Blanche, as he intended to do last Tuesday. He didn't go because I wouldn't give him the money. He wanted $200.

Poor little girl; she has had trouble enough. If she would only come home, you can't know how glad we'd be to have her. She hasn't any money, and she's pawned her belongings. I wrote to her and told her I'd go and bring her home if she'd only come.

"I had suspicions about that man right along. You know it is all wrong, all this talk about Blanche being an actress. Blanche is a fine girl, a dear girl. She has never worked in her life. She had some money left to her, and while she was in New York about three years ago she became stage-struck and went with the Nancy Brown company as far as St. Louis. Yes, she was a chorus girl. But she was with that company only two weeks, and then she came back to New York. That is the whole of her stage experience.

Sniffed a Rat at Once.

"She met this 'baron,' thought he was all he claimed to be and married him. The first I heard of the wedding was when I got a wire from the two up in the Catskills asking me to come up and stay with them. I packed up and went. I hadn't got more than within eyesight of that man before I sniffed a rat. He was that fidgety that he couldn't stand still long enough to make a shadow, and he never would look you square in the face. He contradicted himself to me fifty times if he spoke a word.

"Well, I went to Blanche and I told her that there was something wrong. Blanche was loyal and wouldn't admit it. I told her, though, that if she didn't look this baron fellow up that I would, and she said she wouldn't. About this time I found out that they hadn't advertised the wedding, and that looked more suspicious than ever. I asked them about it and he got nervous. He told me forty reasons for not advertising the wedding, and that settled it. I advertised it myself. I suspected he'd be tripped up, and you see he has been.

"Baron" Wanted Money.

"Things went along about so-so for a while. I didn't stay long with them, but came back to Boston. Then a week ago to-day I got a wire from Blanche asking me to come to New York and see her. I packed up and hustled away, and when I got there I found that they were all ready to sail for Europe that very day—all excepting the necessary money, and that's where I was to come in. I felt that it was hard not to give Blanche the money when she wanted it, and I would have let her have it, too, but I knew who'd get it if I did and I wasn't going to supply that baron fellow with cash.

"Well, that settled it. They didn't sail, and I hurried back to Boston determined to bring matters to a head and have the baron chap arrested. Then he stopped Blanche writing to me.

"Why did you refuse to let my daughter write to me?" I asked him. "Because you are a mischief-maker," he said.

I already knew that he was a boast and a braggart and many other things, and I was determined to find some means to bring him to rights. Then right in the middle of it all the police step in and arrest him and save me the trouble.

ONE RICH AMERICAN GIRL HAS REFUSED A DUKE

MISS SHOEMAKER, WHO REFUSED A DUKE.

Has Written Book of Poems and Owns Prize French Bulldog, But Doesn't Want French Nobleman.

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—One American girl of the highest social connections, and the possessor of wealth and beauty besides, has spurned a foreign title. She is Miss Blanche Leroy Shoemaker of No. 26 West Fifty-third street, and well known in society as the author of a book of poems and the blue ribbon prize exhibitor of French bulldogs. While in Paris she met the Duc de Choiseul-Praslin, scion of one of the greatest and oldest families in France. He fell desperately in love. He is a tall and handsome nobleman and a most ardent wooer. But Miss Shoemaker turned her back resolutely upon him.

"Ah," said the duke, "what does one not suffer for the sins of ancestors?"

He is so eligible in the matrimonial market that he cannot believe that his proposal of marriage was rejected because of his personality. He believes that Miss Shoemaker refused him because of a terrible tragedy in his family history. His grandfather murdered his grandmother during the reign of Louis Philippe, beating out her brains in a fit of insane jealousy. He disappeared, and it was believed he committed suicide to escape death by the guillotine.

The next duke married Miss Forbes of New York, so the present head of the family is half American. He insists that he will make Miss Shoemaker his second wife. He was separated by divorce from the first duchess. He believes that persistence will enable him to triumph in his suit. He followed Miss Shoemaker to London and then to this country.

K. OF L. GIVES UP STRIKE OF LONGSHOREMEN

Expect District Assembly Will Relinquish Attempt to Reach Agreement.

CONCESSIONS REFUSED

It is likely that District Assembly No. 30, Knights of Labor, will give up all attempts to settle the strike of the longshoremen of the Metropolitan Steamship Company. The officers of the assembly declare that they have done everything possible to have the strike settled, and that the longshoremen have turned them down.

John J. Regan, the secretary-treasurer of the local assembly, Knights of Labor, said to-day that in all probability a call for a meeting of the district assembly would be issued for Thursday night to discuss the matter.

"I feel confident that the district assembly will decide to give up attempting to make any settlement of this strike," said Mr. Regan to-day when seen at his home, No. 23 Allen street, Somerville, by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "The assembly has done everything in its power to bring this strike to an end. The terms of arbitration agreed upon last Friday were fair, and there is no reason why the longshoremen should not accept them.

Wanted Men Taken Back at Once.

Their main reason for rejecting them is that the Metropolitan Steamship Company would not agree to take all of the men back at once. Under the provisions of the agreement, which, by the way, was not only signed by myself as one of the arbitrators, and President Austin, of the steamship company, but John R. Dalton, in behalf of the longshoremen, a limited number were to be taken back at first. Mr. Dalton is now one of the leaders in the forces of the longshoremen who do not want to accept the terms of arbitration."

If these terms had been accepted there would be only a few men who went on strike that would not be taken back by October 1. Anyway there are some of the men who say that they would never go back to work for the steamship company. These are the men who have secured jobs elsewhere and are satisfied with their work. Out of the 200 who went on strike on August 15 only about thirty are still unemployed."

When asked if there was likely to be a general strike as the result of the longshoremen's refusal to accept the terms of arbitration, Mr. Regan said that there was not.

"So far as the freight handlers are concerned, I can speak for them with authority," he said. "I am employed in the freight department of the Boston & Maine Railroad. The men there are generally satisfied with the way they are being treated, and because they are being used so well would reluctantly join in a general strike."

SCOTTISH RITE MASONS HERE IN CONVENTION

The annual meeting of the Supreme Council of the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite of the Masonic order for the northern jurisdiction of the United States is being held to-day in Masonic Temple. M. P. Sovereign Grand Commander Henry L. Palmer of Milwaukee, Wis., presided at the morning session, most of which was taken up with routine business. To-night the thirty-third degree will be conferred in full form upon candidates elected at the last annual meeting.

The delegates to the convention are accompanied by their wives in many cases and a local committee of Masons will entertain the women guests to-night at a dinner and theatre party. The business of the convention will be finished up to-morrow when the election of officers may also take place. The entertainment of the guests is in the hands of the following committee:

Charles C. Hutchinson, chairman; Daniel W. Lawrence, treasurer; Benjamin W. Rowell, secretary; Samuel C. Lawrence, Albert L. Richardson, J. Harvey Young, Eugene A. Holton, Henry N. Fisher, James A. Davis, Rinaldo B. Richardson, the Rev. Stephen H. Roblin, Charles A. Estey, Edward G. Graves and Joseph W. Work.

They have the co-operation of the ladies' auxiliary committee, which consists of the wives of the following members: Samuel C. Lawrence, Benjamin W. Rowell, J. Harvey Young, Henry N. Fisher, Charles A. Estey, Joseph W. Work, Daniel W. Lawrence, Albert L. Richardson, Eugene A. Holton, Rinaldo B. Richardson and Edward G. Graves.

WATCH FOR HEAD OF WONDERLAND

On behalf of the concessionaires of Wonderland, Ring Master Fred A. Bennett presented a $200 gold watch yesterday to General Manager Floyd C. Thompson. Mr. Bennett stated that the concessionaires made the gift as a token of their appreciation of the pleasant relations that existed between Mr. Thompson and the Wonderland amusement purveyors during the season just closed.

LOONIE IS FOR CITYOWNERSHIP

By solely a typographical error, the name of Edward F. Loonie of Ward 18, Republican candidate for the State House of Representatives in the Eighteenth District, was referred to in a political review in last Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN, as a "dodger" on municipal lighting. Mr. Loonie has always been, since his entrance into public and political life, a staunch believer in and supporter of municipal ownership, and, in general, of public ownership of public utilities. Recently, he placed his name at the head of a petition for municipal ownership which was circulated in Ward 18.

NO SERPENT IN SANFORD'S Ginger to sting you with remorse. No other stimulant so healthful.

FLATIRON TO GO UP IN HEART OF BACK BAY

Thomas W. Lawson has closed a real estate transfer of particular interest to Back Bay residents in the sale of the large triangular plot of land at the intersection of Beacon street and Bay State road. It is understood that a flatiron building will be erected, with stores on the ground floor. The land once stood in the name of Mr. Lawson's late wife, and has long been one of the beauty spots of the Beacon street drive.

The plot was sold by Mr. Lawson to a New York syndicate for $254,000.

When Mr. Lawson took up his residence on Beacon street, near the triangle, he purchased this unimproved plot partly at the request of his wife and partly at the friendly solicitations of his neighbors, in order to forestall the erection of any undesirable buildings, which would at once shut off the view of many residences and destroy the natural beauty of the spacious streets at this point.

The new owners have announced their intention of erecting a handsome apartment house on the plot, which will give Boston its first pretentious "flatiron" structure in the Back Bay. The building, according to the announcement, will be twelve stories high, with arcade features on the street, consisting probably of a drug store and a few select booths, with living apartments above.

MORAN AND OWNERSHIP.

SAY BOY STOLE FROM MINISTER

Lyman B. Atwood, an eighteen-year-old boy, who has been mixed up with the police on previous occasions, was in the Waltham District Court to-day, charged with breaking and entering and larceny from the residence of the Rev. C. A. Place and the Highland station of the Boston & Maine Railroad. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $3,500 bail for the grand jury.

The warrant upon which young Atwood was arraigned charges him with breaking into the Place residence on September 4 and on September 8 it is charged that he broke into the railroad station.

THRONGS CHEER W. R. HEARST IN COOPER UNION

Independence League Candidate Shows How New Parties Have Succeeded.

"IF NEEDED, THEY'LL WIN"

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—In old Cooper Union, where all the great reform movements of the past fifty years received their impetus forward, William Randolph Hearst and his associates on the Independence League ticket addressed a great ratification meeting last night, and formally opened the reform campaign of 1906. Enthusiasm dominated the meeting from the opening of the doors until the meeting terminated with an ovation to Mr. Hearst and his fellow-candidates.

Long before the meeting was called to order the doors of Cooper Union were closed, every bit of standing room being then occupied, and those who came after were compelled to content themselves with the overflow meetings outside.

Many women attended the meeting, and the remarkable sight of a clergyman occupying the position of chairman of the gathering was witnessed perhaps for the first time at a purely political gathering in New York.

Among the speakers were Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor; John Ford, candidate for Attorney-General; Clarence J. Shearn, Nathan Vidaver, Charles Frederick Adams and Judge Samuel Seabury.

Mr. Hearst was the last speaker of the evening, and his appearance was the signal for an outburst of applause which continued until Mr. Hearst begged for a hearing from his enthusiastic friends.

His address was an appeal for independent action on the part of the whole people to the end that popular government may be restored to the nation. A score of times his auditors, after listening intently to the serious utterances that fell from his lips, burst into cheers.

It was declared on all sides that the speech was one of the strongest appeals for reform ever uttered in this State.

HEARST SAYS NEW PARTIES WILL WIN IF THEY DESERVE TO

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Mr. Hearst's speech follows:

A leading newspaper occupies some space in an attempt to prove that new parties are seldom successful.

I would like to review, briefly and without argument, the exact historical facts relating to the formation of new parties in this country, and I think we will arrive at a different conclusion.

I think we will become convinced that the success of any movement depends not upon whether it is new, but upon whether it is needed.

When a new movement offers to the people reforms and advantages which the old parties deny them, it is almost uniformly successful.

The first new party which attained conspicuous success in this country was the Independence party of 1776. The movement began with the Boston Tea Party, and resulted in an independence organization known as the United States of America.

That movement was an undisputed success.

Do not imagine, however, that all the people of this country were from the first enrolled in this new movement. The Independence party was opposed to the Tory party.

Tories the "Stand Patters."

The Tory party expressed conservative content with conditions that existed, no matter how bad they might be. The Tories were the "Stand-patters" of their day. The Tory party's platform was submission to taxation without representation, acknowledgment of the divine right of kings, and consent to the exploitation and oppression of the plain people by the privileged classes.

The principles of the new movement, on the other hand, were liberty, equality and opportunity, recognition of the power of the people and of the rights of the people.

Its platform was the Declaration of Independence.

Its achievement was the election of George Washington President of the United States.

In the Cabinet of George Washington party division sprang up again. Hamilton, his Secretary of the Treasury, was an able man with the mind of a financier. He was conservative in character, reactionary in tendency. His remedy for the inevitable difficulties of our experiment in government was a step backward toward the governments existing in the Old World.

Jefferson was an idealist, yet thoroughly practical.

His understanding of the situation was more accurate. His remedy for the difficulties of popular government was more popular government, a closer adherence to the principles of the Declaration of Independence.

The first President elected after Washington was John Adams, a representative of the conservative interests, but Jefferson launched his new popular party of the Republic, and called it the Democratic-Republican party.

Jefferson proposed a government for the greatest good of the greatest number, and enunciated the doctrine of equal rights for all and special privileges to none.

New Party Again Succeeds.

At the next election, in 1800, the new movement was successful. The actual practice by the new party of our professed principles of Americanism was so popular that four years later the Democratic-Republican party was almost unanimously re-elected, and for twenty years there was practically no other party to dispute its dominance in this country.

It will be difficult to prove this new movement did not score a certain amount of success.

After twenty years, however, the classes who cluster around the party in power, who find their profit in governmental favors, had fastened themselves like barnacles upon the Democratic-Republican party.

The United States Bank had become a mighty financial and political institution. It controlled the degenerate party of Jefferson. It nominated a conservative, John Quincy Adams, the son of the man Jefferson had opposed a quarter of a century before. Adams was elected, but Andrew Jackson launched another new popular party, the Democratic party of to-day.

Jackson said, speaking of the United States Bank:

"If there is in this country a power greater than the power of the people, by the eternal I will destroy it."

Four years later Andrew Jackson was elected, and what he promised he performed. He destroyed the political power of the bank. He restored the government to the people and conducted the administration according to the tenets of Jefferson and the principles of the Declaration of Independence.

This new movement was sufficiently successful to endure for another quarter of a century, with but little interruption.

At the end of that time the Government was again in the grip of the privileged classes.

Slaveholders in Control.

The slave-holding aristocracy controlled and conducted the Government for their own benefit. There were some among them who denied the doctrine of the Declaration of Independence that all men are created equal and denounced the self-evident truths of Jefferson as "SELF-EVIDENT LIES."

In 1854 another new movement, the Republican party, was formed. It stood squarely upon the Declaration of Independence and declared that its object was:

"To restore the action of the government to the principles of Washington and Jefferson."

In 1860 the new movement elected Abraham Lincoln President of the United States. Lincoln was a Jeffersonian Republican. He said:

"I have never had a feeling politically that did not spring from the sentiments embodied in the Declaration of Independence."

For years the Republican party maintained the principles of Lincoln, but finally it went the way of all parties long in power.

It is controlled now by special interests who use the government for their private profit. It has united with the Democratic party in this State, in a criminal combination, to deny to the people of New York their legal rights and their political liberties.

Is there not need for a new party, based on fundamental American principles? And who will say, in the light of history, that it will not succeed?

Our little league is only local, but it is fired with the spirit of the men of '76. We believe that all men are created equal and have equal rights before the law. We deny the divine right of monopoly to tax us, and of special privilege to exploit us. We claim the right of popular government, of self-government, and the right to have our votes counted as cast.

With Jefferson and Lincoln.

We stand with Jefferson in favor of a government for the greatest good of the greatest number. We say with Jackson: "If there is a power in this country greater than the power of the people we will destroy it."

We repeat with Lincoln that all our political sentiments are embodied in the Declaration of Independence, and we declare, with the first convention of the Republican party, that our intention is "To restore the action of the Government to the Principles of Washington and Jefferson."

The question is not merely "How shall we succeed?" but rather "How shall we best deserve to succeed?"

We will succeed if we continue devoted to the people's interest, if we keep closely within the lines laid down for us by the fathers of the Republic, if we walk straightly along the path where Washington and Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln have walked before us. In the light of their lives, we can see our way clearly.

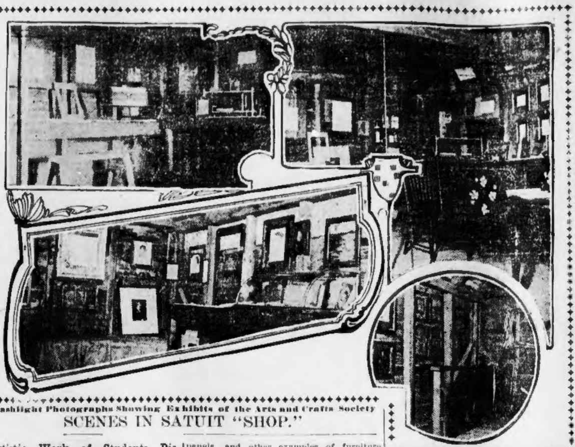
FINE CRAFTSMANSHIP IS SHOWN BY SATUIT SOCIETY



Flashlight Photographs Showing Exhibits of the Arts and Crafts Society

SCENES IN SATUIT "SHOP."

Artistic Work of Students Displayed at Second Annual Exhibition.

The members of the Satuit Crafts Society of Scituate are being congratulated on the second annual exhibition of work by the society, which took place at the crafts "shop" in the Scituate studio of Charles H. Copeland.

The exhibition included many specimens of arts and craft work. One of the features was a collection of colored reproductions of "Tanagra figurines" by Miss A. Beckington. Dawson Watson, one of the charter members of the society, showed pieces of "mediaeval gothic" furniture, with colored panels, and other examples of furniture suitable for country houses.

Colonists See Display.

Miss Vail contributed some pieces of hand-wrought silver, set with semi-precious stones, which were greatly admired for their artistic conception and high-class craftsmanship.

The members of the Summer colonies at Scituate and other places along the South Shore attended the exhibition, many town visitors coming down from Boston to see the display.

The Satuit Crafts Society was organized last year by some of the Summer residents. The charter members include Mrs. T. C. Meteyard, Charles H. Copeland, Mrs. Copeland, T. B. Meteyard, Bliss Carman, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson-Watson and Mother Hovey. Dawson-Watson, the well-known artist, is president.

There is quite a literary and artistic coterie at Scituate, and the idea of the Satuit Crafts was instantly approved. Beside the eight charter members, there are twenty-five "craftsmen members," as they are called, and twelve "members."

Show Clever Work.

The society held its first exhibit last September, when examples of gold framing, lace, embroidery, bookbinding, silver work, pyrography, wood-block printing, stained glass design, oil and water color paintings and other specimens of craftsmanship were shown.

Since the first exhibit the members have been turning out many new articles in these various lines, designed for this second exhibit, which took place yesterday. These were artistically arranged in the "shop" and made a display especially praiseworthy, considering the youth of the society.

YANKEES TO QUIET MOORS?

LONDON, Sept. 18.—A dispatch from Tangier to the Times says:

"There is a tendency to underestimate the importance of the American mission to Fez. Minister Gummere will not only present his credentials, but also will lay before the Sultan his government's views of the existing state of anarchy in Morocco and demand the payment of American claims and punishment for offences against American subjects. The Maghzen also will doubtless be reminded of the Sultan's promise to speedily punish Raisuli for the seizure and detention of Mr. Perdicas."

The dispatch says the position of America renders her action in these matters easier than in the case of European powers, the hands of whose representatives are tied by the political situation in Europe.

PETER DAILEY DIVIDES HONORS WITH BERNARD SHAW

ARNOLD DALY RUNS HOT RACE WITH LANGUAGE

He Wins in a Gallop in "You Never Can Tell," but Forgets Audience.

PLAY IS WELL RECEIVED

Arnold Daly's second week in repertoire at the Tremont Theatre opened last night with George Bernard Shaw's brilliant satirical comedy, "You Never Can Tell," which is the offering for the entire week. The fascinating satire on everything domestic and sentimental was received with more than pronounced warmth.

It is hard to conceive a company more adequately adapted to the many difficult roles than that which surrounds the talented Mr. Daly. And the domestic drama is peculiarly one which requires cleverness throughout the entire cast. Just as in Mr. Shaw's delightful creation, you wonder where's the hero and who's the heroine, so when the curtain falls you are forced to puzzle which of Mr. Daly's powerful company is the star.

And a poll of last night's enthusiastic audience would, perhaps, have selected about anyone but Arnold Daly. Of course his talent was evident, his brilliancy at times was charming and his buoyancy was infectious.

But his articulation—there's the rub; his enunciation—simply unintelligible. In "You Never Can Tell" Mr. Daly runs a hair-raising race with the English language—and wins in a gallop. There are times when the versatile Mr. Valentine is per force impetuous, but just why Mr. Daly elects to be so outrageously confidential and conversational that his audience has to strain and stretch to catch his most brilliant lines is hard to determine. Mr. Daly is at his best in the first scene, where he listens mostly and just acts. He is superb in his own dentist shop.

John Findley's William is a masterpiece and was signally recognized as such by the audience. Miss Herne, as Miss Clandon, divided honors with Mr. Daly in many of the cleverest situations. All in all, Mr. Daly's company is eminently suited to the cleverness of "You Never Can Tell," and the comedy was rarely, if ever, better presented.

ELECTRIC BALLET'S STARTLING EFFECTS

"Starlight," Harndin's marvelous electrical ballet, retains its place as the headliner of the Keith bill this week, and it is an honor deserved. "My! How is it done?" is the favorite form of exclamation heard when the ballet twinkles into view, the dresses of the women a fluttering mass of color—real, live color produced by the electric bulbs concealed in their gowns. A fetching idea of the stage manager of the ballet is the "shade hat," with the electric lights on top of the wearers' heads, covered over by the usual green metal shade of the electric light, lighting up the faces of the dancers, leaving all else in darkness.

Science produced the electrical ballet; human nature produced the sketch, "Bill Biffin's Baby," which Will M. Cressy wrote and which he and Blanche Dayne present this week.

The rest of the bill moves along rapidly. There is Shungopavi, the Indian medicine man, who presents a novel magician act; Blanche Sharpe, who sings pleasantly in costume; Brown, Harris and Brown, who "cut up" and cause laughs by sheer foolishness; the pretty act of Mlle. Bertholdy and her trained cockatoos, and Nora Baynes, who has just returned from Europe with a basket of new songs, which she sings charmingly.

The four Rianos return with their acrobatic act, "In Africa," telling of the troubles of the professor, the servant girl and the two agile monkeys. Nat Haines talks. The blue pencil of the Keith censor is badly needed with Nat's talk. The Kinetograph shows new motion pictures, including one of Mayor Fitzgerald in New York.

WILLS IS LIFE OF "A LUCKY DOG"

Nat M. Wills is the life and sparkle of "A Lucky Dog" at the Globe Theatre. There are some others in the mis-en-scene, but they are merely the tail to the canine. The production is announced as a musical play and just gets by under the description. It has a plot—a hypnotic ring stolen from an East Indian idol—and a few embellishments that tend toward the serious. On the whole the show would please as well without them. It is all Wills, and as the happy tramp, he is always amusing in a rough and ready, happy-go-lucky fashion. His songs are hits one and all. "Beautiful Bed" was sung with an abandon which set the gallery wild and made all the rest of the house sit up and listen, while his parodies were clever and encored insatiately.

PARISIAN WIDOWS VISIT THE LYCEUM

Weber & Rush's Parisian Widows Extravaganza Company present a show at the Lyceum Theatre this week fully up to the average of its predecessors at this house. The comedy parts were taken by Snitz Moore, whose liberties with German and Yiddish seemed to wear well; Lee Hickman and Sam Brooks. The curtain raiser, "Tutti-Frutti" is as meaningless as its title. Rose Jeanette in a soubrette role and Madge Coleman in soldierly garb are conspicuous.

BALTIMORE BEAUTIES ARE IN DEMAND

What could be more pleasing to the masculine eye than a stageful of dimpled beauties such as Manager Farren has at the Columbia this week under the alluring title of "The Baltimore Beauties"? The answer naturally is "two stagefuls." The burlettas are of the rollicking kind, with plenty of work for everyone to do, and with the audience splitting its sides at their doings. Leon Erroll as the perplexed German is indescribably funny, while the big two—Ted Evans and Tony Kennedy—fairly outdo themselves as the Celtic wits.

ITALIANS PLAY "CAMILLE."

A large and enthusiastic gathering of Italians witnessed the performance of "Camille" at the Hub Theatre last night by the Silvio Minciotti Dramatic Company of New York. Mr. Minciotti played the part of Armond in a perfect manner and Mme. Pia Perez's conception of the part of Camille was excellent. The rest of the cast were letter perfect.

Dailey as "The Press Agent" Resembles the Real Article

Starts Excitement by Arranging for Actress to Fall Into River.

He comes on in a green suit with white hat, gloves and spats. He immediately starts to give the "con," just like the real press agent. Peter Dailey is as smooth as the real thing and, like the genuine article, he delivers the goods. Beginning by creating a scare-head story of the actress who is thrown into the river, he ends by organizing a union among the revolutionists and his life is saved when they knock off fighting at the sound of the bell.

JUST ONE MOMENT GENTLEMEN—NOW!
BENTON SCOOPS (MR. DAILEY) GETS BUSY TURNING OUT PRESS AGENT COPY.

Between these two episodes Peter, as Benton Scoops, a war correspondent, acts as a pivot around which revolves all manner of interesting things. He made his first appearance at the Majestic Theatre last evening, in a new conglomeration of pretty costumes, pretty scenery, commonplace looking girls, Toby Lyons, Kate Condon, Isabel Hall, some pretty music and dances and a plot that resembled a plate of hash. All reference to the title, "The Press Agent," is forgotten after the first few words, and perhaps it is just as well.

PEACHES
PEACHES
THE CHORUS
THE NEXT TIME SHE COMES?
THE SECOND ONE ON THE LEFT DON'T
LET'S WAIT AT THE STAGE DOOR AND SMOKE CIGARETTES
LEMONS AND PEACHES
KATE CONDON, THE SPANISH BEAUTY, IS GOOD TO LOOK UPON.

More of Miss English Desired.

Let's forget the plot! What's the use? Dailey, Toby Lyons, (Good morning men!) and Misses Condon and Hall are the whole show. And Little Marjorie English—there isn't half enough of her act. She does some imitations that are "simply great," and then disappears. Please, Mr. Dailey, bring her back.

Dailey gets but one good opportunity in the first act, which goes slowly in spots. Then he sings "Alexis from Texas" with vim and to the accompaniment of a dozen damsels in cowboy garb. Toby Lyons makes a hit with his Gazabo song and "I think It Must Be Love," with Dailey and La Belle Blanche, and Miss Hall and Charlie Bowers have a couple of nice ones in "In a Hammock" and "Sweethearts." The moonlight song is also pretty.

The real life and color comes in the second act, one of the prettiest in settings and costumes ever seen here. All is Spanish, and Betty Ohls as Pepita and Miss Condon have some beautiful songs, that of "Soubrero" and "My [illegible]" bringing the audience to a wild pitch of enthusiasm.

His Life Is Saved When Revolutionists' Union Goes on Strike.

Mr. Dailey Gets Busy.

Here Dailey gets busy. He tells the Spanish revolutionist he looks like the fellow who blew up the Maine, orders two siestas, with plenty of ice but not too much pepper, declares that alfalfa is Spanish for 23, and offers to buy union suits for the Revolutionists' Union.

CARAMBA-IT-IS SHE MUST NOT BE IS IT?
GEN. BUSTAMENTO IS AS WARM A PROPOSITION AS A SPANISH ONION.

Dolores (Miss Condon) also gets busy and has a lot of fireworks during which she reveals two pretty dimples in her shoulders, and a fine effect is produced by a gondola filled with the prettiest of the chorus. There are but four of them in it. The others are out of sight. The man who hired them failed to look at their profiles.

Dailey describes the simple life in a good song and then Miss Hall, who has been masquerading as a stunning naval officer with quite a breadth of beam, is rehabilitated and does a really good stunt at the head of a company of vivandiers in rich, red costumes. All carried drums and, my! how they held the sticks. One would think they were shaking dice. A good word must be said of Mr. Friebel's General Bustamento. It is a gem and his make-up is perfect.

All is well that ends well. The revolutionists go on strike, Toby Lyons shows that he is born to be a comedian, Mr. Dailey enjoys himself and so does everybody "out front." That's all that is desired, so "The Press Agent" is happy.

"THE CON GAME" IS KELLEY'S BEST

Another feature bill is presented at the Orpheum Theatre this week. The star act of the program, or the one that meets with the greatest favor with the audience, is "The Con Game," acted by John T. Kelley, late of Weber-Fields, and company. The playlet is one of the finest seen in vaudeville in years. It tells of how an Irish contractor went on a "bat," and the way the "cold, gray dawn" struck him the next morning. A crook pretends that he carried Dan O'Rourke (Kelley) home, and that previously O'Rourke had smashed mirrors, for which he had paid out of his own pocket, and how he had flirted with a girl in a rathskeller. Of course O'Rourke in his intoxication had not remembered anything of his escapade of the night before and is just about to give up $5,000 for "hush money," when a policeman enters and tells O'Rourke that two of the greatest bunco steeres in New York are trying to fleece him.

O'Rourke is duly grateful, and while he has his back turned the cop nails the $5,000 out of the safe and divides it with the pair that were trying to do O'Rourke. Kelley, who is one of, if not the best Irish comedians, on the stage to-day, has a part that is admirably suited to his talents, and he keeps the audience in an uproar.

All the other acts on the bill are star affairs. Virginia Earle and her "Johnnies," who sing in pleasing style, were the performers that were accorded "second-best" applause. The other notable hits were made by Chris Richards, a clever English comedian and dancer, and the Colby family, who play musical instruments and dance.

BIBLICAL KING VIES WITH A MONEY KING

David and his warriors again filled the stage of the Colonial Theatre last evening, and the third and final week of the engagement of "The Shepherd King" opened in a manner that indicated the unquestioned popularity of Wright Lorimer, the star, with Boston audiences.

By and by, if "The Lion and the Mouse" grows in popularity at the Park Theatre, as the audiences last week indicated, extra matinees will be necessary to accommodate patrons. The play began another week in its engagement last night. It was the same story—every seat filled and an immense audience pleased.

LIMBLESS WONDER ON DECK TO-DAY

Randion, the armless and legless man, who does about everything anyone else can do, except walk and shake hands, will be on deck at Austin & Stone's Museum today, for the immigration authorities have released him. There was an immense audience at the Museum yesterday, disappointed at not seeing him, but fully satisfied with the rest of the show. The great Fielding performed his feats of eating, drinking and sleeping under water. The Shawletts mystified with their levitation acts, and something new in bag punching was shown by the Victor brothers.

"FATAL WEDDING" FOR FIRST TIME

For the first time at popular prices and by a stock company, "The Fatal Wedding," one of the greatest of modern melodramas, was given at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday. The plot deals with the manipulations of a man and woman to separate a happy man and wife and estrange his family. Success crowns their efforts until the adventuress is to wed the man whose wife she has estranged. The man plotter, enraged at this, tells of the wrong he has done and kills the wicked woman at the altar.

CRAIG IS FUNNY IN A JOLLY FARCE

"Lost—Twenty-four Hours," a farce comedy, is the attraction presented by the John Craig stock company at the Bijou Theatre this week. It is replete with comedy situations, of which Craig and his excellent support made the most last night before a crowded house. The plot centres around the efforts of "Dick" Swift, a New Yorker, to explain to his wife the compromising position in which he is discovered upon her return unexpectedly from a holiday trip into the country. He is found by her in the arms of Bertha Dacre, an alleged widow. He introduces Mrs. Dacre to his wife as his sister.

HURLED KNIVES AT BOUND GIRL

"The Gambler of the West" at the Grand Opera House this week is as cleverly staged a melodrama as has been presented this season at the popular drama house. A roaring prairie fire scene, a handsome maiden tied to a post and having bolwe knives hurled at her, the hold-up of the stage coach and the final raising of the American flag in the midst of the battle by a trained horse are some of the novel effects.

"DAUGHTERS OF MEN" KLEIN'S MASTERPIECE

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 18.—"The Daughters of Men," latest play of Charles Klien, author of "The Lion and the Mouse" and "The Music Master" was produced for the first time on any stage at the Court Square Theatre last night with one of the most notable companies seen here in recent years.

Conservative criticism is that the new play is Mr. Klein's masterpiece, and will rival in popularity "The Lion and the Mouse." He pictures powerfully the evils of the growing class distinction in America, and shows that the brotherhood of men can only be brought about by the power of love.

RENTZ-SANTLEYS AT THE PALACE

Abe Leavitt's Rentz-Santley company is the attraction at the Palace Theatre this week. The vehicles that introduced them are two highly amusing burlesques, "Forty Minutes from the Bowery," and "The Squaw Man's Wife," a breezy satire on "The Squaw Man." A travesty on "Sapho" creates no end of fun. The burlesques are beautifully staged and the costuming is really gorgeous.

RUSSIAN DRAMA FOR FIRST TIME

The Boston Stage Society, the title by which the management of the Castle Square Theatre likes to be known, presented for the first time in Boston last night a Russian swash-buckling drama, "By Right of Sword." Like all Castle Square productions, the piece was well staged and the parts handled adequately.

As Richard Hamilton, an American seeking adventure, Mr. Hansell was disappointing. Just why an actor with a straight, legitimate part, without the slightest chance in the lines or business that would indicate the author's desire for horse play, should seek to pull laughs from the audience, where he should impress, is a thing difficult to understand. Mr. Hansell amused in the part, but it was a role that called for more serious consideration. American gentlemen upon adventure bent are not popularly supposed to perform opera bouffe stunts while rescuing their Nihilist sweethearts from the bloody fangs of the Little White Father.

The play is a very satisfying one for all of this, and will doubtless prove popular with Castle Square patrons.

GINGER A-PLENTY AT THE HOWARD

A genuine Old Howard show, full of ginger, tights, lingerie and laughter, is what is offered at the Howard street playhouse this week. There are two features, the burlesquers (forty springers and bantams, with a few roosters for even measure), and Dziria, the Brazilian dancer, who gave a remarkably graceful and pretty series of dances that were different from what the male patrons expected.

The bill is a big one, and includes the Trans-Atlantic Four, Bowers, Walton and Crooker, acrobatic Rubes; George H. Wood, the "somewhat different comedian"; Finlay and Burke, Diamond and Smith with new illustrated songs; Fields and Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Hughes, who would be "great" if only Mrs. Nick wouldn't sing; the Ader trio of jugglers, Kenney and Hollis, Redeo and Hadley, Pucella and Orben and the Howardscope.

IBSEN EVENT IS "THE WILD DUCK"

The most important Ibsen event of the season is the first presentation in America of "The Wild Duck," by Wright Lorimer and his company, at the Colonial Theatre Thursday afternoon. It will be given a most elaborate production, with the following cast: Hjalmar Ekdal, Mr. Lorimer; Gregers Werle, Carl Eckstrom; Gina Ekdal, Margaret Hayward; Mrs. Sorby, Lorena Atwood, and Ethelbert Hales as old Ekdal. Only one performance can be given.

JEFFERSON FINE AS "RIP"

Thomas Jefferson opened a two weeks' engagement of "Rip Van Winkle" at the Boston Theatre last evening, before a house such as was wont to greet his famous father, and, following more closely than ever the lines of genius that made the elder "Rip" beloved, he established himself firmly in the hearts of all who were there to welcome him. No man in the history of the American stage has labored under a greater handicap than Thomas Jefferson, in essaying a role to which the greatest of comedians gave the best that was in him, and to say that the son is following his sire worthily is the most sufficient praise that can be accorded him.

Hot Potatoes Do Daniels Up to a Nice Rich Turn

Frank Daniels, in his funny self, with hot potatoes on his nervous chest, started a full house laughing at the opening of "Sergeant Brue" at the Hollis Street Theatre. Then the fun kept going and growing. Bostonians who saw Daniels here in this play last season recollect that hot potato scene wherein Daniels stuffs his "Bobbie's" jacket with the spuds to give him a chest and how the spuds burned through till Daniels was well done.

At the end of the second act the audience insisted that Daniels come out and tell 'em all about it. So there was a characteristic Daniels speech, touching on every subject from the snow clad peaks of the Himalayas to where rolls the Oregon. The subject in hand, whatever it was, was assiduously avoided and finally they shut off the light and left Daniels still talking and the house screaming with laughter.

After the fun created by Frank Daniels the next pleasure was in watching and listening to the team work and the singing of that Broadway chorus. In "Old Man Shea" particularly, the chorus girls danced and sang for Daniels's solo with a verve and a snap that is sadly needed by the average chorus girl. Julia Frary, a statuesque and beautiful "Lady Bickenhall," scored a hit with her song, "Dearie."

Charles H. Drew made all there was to his clever character role of "Crookie Scrubbs, a Criminal." Whenever he and Daniels crossed trails in the play, which was pretty frequent, the two combined to tickle the audience immensely. Maud Karl as Aurora and Charlesworth Meakins as Gerald sang and acted their dainty love song, "A Cup of Tea," in the prettiest way imaginable. Meakins's voice was unusually good.

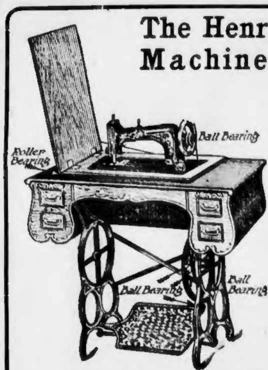
Machines Delivered at Once:

Then $1 a Week



WE asked a great sewing machine company to sell us 300 sewing machines at a planked-down cash price. "Can't do it," was the reply, "for you'd cut the price, and we'd never hear the last of it. We'll give you the machine at your price if you'll not print our names, and we'll call the machines The Monarch.

Pay $2—this is your guarantee of good faith. Then we send your machine right home. The balance—less $2, or $21.75, is payable in sums of $1 a week—or in monthly parts if so desired. No interest, no extras of any kind.

The Monarch "Your expert can testify that not a penny of expense is spared—the machines are our best; just the painted name being changed." And that's all of it. We shall distribute them through a club plan.

We warrant the machines, just as the makers do those sold under their name, for five years.

The picture here printed is taken from the machine itself. We are authorized to warrant the machines for five years—which means that if breakage occurs from any imperfection in manufacture (and a break shows a flaw if one ever existed) the machine is fixed for nothing. Better still, we guarantee that the machine shall continue to do good sewing—and that's your concern.

Description: Beautiful drop-head, automatic lift machines, the oak case in Colonial style. The machine is the improved lockstitch, full ball bearing, hence easy to run, and almost noiseless. Positive feed; self-threading shuttle, automatic bobbin winder.

Attachments: Ruffler with shirring plate; tucker, six hemmers; one braider; one narrow foot hemmer that sews on lace at same operation; one quilter, and all necessary tools.

When we say the machines are regularly $40 it means that we cannot find them sold under that price in any city or town. They probably sell for more than $40 in the usual sewing machine selling way. To our club members, $23.75.

LYNN AND SOMERVILLE FORM STRONG INDEPENDENCE LEAGUES

Shoe City Branch Instructs Delegates for Moran for Governor—Want Labor Man in Second Place on the Ticket

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Sept. 18.—Lynn's branch of the Independence League of Massachusetts has instructed its sixteen delegates to vote for the nomination of John B. Moran for Governor, and of a workingman for the lieutenant-governorship. Mr. Moran's name was put before the meeting by Edwin R. Fairbanks, president of the branch, and its mention brought forth great applause, followed by the suggestion that a labor man be named for Lieutenant-Governor. The move was immediately seconded, and by a unanimous vote the delegates were instructed. The resolution:

"Voted, That the delegates to the State convention be instructed to vote for the nomination of John B. Moran for Governor and for a workingman for Lieutenant-Governor."

It was also voted to elect President Fairbanks a member of the State Committee from the First Essex District, and to recommend that delegates to the convention next Saturday work in conjunction with others to secure the election of Secretary Fred J. Fisher as a delegate from the Seventh Middlesex District.

All Parties Represented.

At the meeting there were present representatives of every political party, business men, laboring men and wage-earners from almost every walk of life. The meeting was called to order about 8 p. m., in the parlors of the Hotel Seymour.

Representative in every way was the gathering and it was fitting in every way of the launching of the independent movement by the citizens of Lynn. That all these different factions should combine in one united effort adds much weight to the strength of the organization, the members believe. They all came for the same purpose, to form an organization, upon which can be built in Lynn a branch league, with a large membership roll, each member, a citizen, entitled to his own independent, free right of thought.

The citizens elected as president Edwin R. Fairbanks; vice-president, Timothy Crowley, and secretary and treasurer, Fred J. Fisher. The executive committee elected included William P. Rounsville, E. A. Rogers, E. B. Williams, William E. Davis, Andrew B. Cox, Dr. J. Shearman Keith, Secretary Fred J. Fisher, and President Fairbanks, who will act as chairman. Sixteen delegates were elected to the State convention in Faneuil Hall, Boston, on Saturday next, to represent the League.

In President Fairbanks's speech, he said, in part:

"Cannot Change Parties."

"It is a physical impossibility to change the conditions in either party. There are those privileged ones in both parties who make merchandise out of the people and sell their votes as if their allegiance to the voters was nothing. An independent movement of this kind is badly needed and we have the men who will sacrifice their time and money in the combined effort to further the good cause which they represent.

This Independence League stands for much for the workingman. It is his opportunity. It is his chance to get away from those who have him in their power, and he should take it. The Independence League is an organization which will send men to our legislative bodies who will be truly representative of the people's interests, and every man, no matter what his political affiliations, who believes in the aims and the principles of the League should join its ranks at once and do everything in his power to advance the cause."

HAVERHILL LEAGUE AROUSES VOTERS OF CITY TO ENTHUSIASM

Special to the Boston American.

HAVERHILL, Sept. 18.—The citizens of this place are turning their attention to the new Independence League in this city in such numbers as to make the leaders of the old parties sit up and take notice.

John J. Murphy, who is well known in politics here, who was chosen as the president of the organization, and Daniel G. Hall, secretary, have been doing all they could within the past few days to add to the membership before the delegates go to the State convention to be held at Boston next Saturday afternoon and evening.

"This organization," said Secretary Hall, "has come to stay. It is a movement in politics that is meeting with the support of the people in general, and is bound to grow. The action of the convention will be eagerly looked for here. It is believed that it will be a convention that will come more nearly representing the wishes of the people than any that has been held in this State for a century."

SOMERVILLE, LONG UNDER BOSSES' YOKE, ORGANIZES BRANCH

In Somerville, where Republicans and political grafters have had their say for many years, the citizens of that city met last night and formed a branch of the Independence League of Massachusetts. Stirring speeches were made by members, who declare that they will fight to a finish to put honest men into office, men who will give the workingman a chance, who will vote in his interest, and will shun the money of the corporations.

The gathering was the first which the citizens have called to join the ranks of the Independence League, and there was no lack of enthusiasm to show that the citizens meant what they said and were going to do things themselves instead of being given a back place by grafters and politicians, whose votes were bought and controlled by the corporations whenever those bodies needed them.

The citizens placed at the head of their organization George E. Gookin, 2d, a young man experienced and capable of heading what is certain to become so strong a body. The vice-president is C. E. Butterworth, another young man who has taken a deep interest in matters which give the working man a voice in the affairs of his country. Arthur W. Clark, secretary of the Wage Earners' Club, and a well known labor man, was made secretary. Edward Mahoney, a member of the Democratic ward and city committees, was elected treasurer.

Elect Nine Delegates.

To represent the Somerville branch of the Independence League of Massachusetts at the State convention, to be held at Faneuil Hall on Saturday, September 22, at which an Independence League ticket will be nominated for the coming State election, the following members were elected: President George E. Gookin, 2d; George E. Gookin, 1st; Treasurer Edward C. Mahoney, Secretary Arthur W. Clark, Thomas M. Nolan, Henry Higgins, William C. Brown, Vice-President C. E. Butterworth and Edward H. Marks.

After President William N. Osgood of the Massachusetts Independence League, the State organization, had outlined the aims and principles of the league, and the members had elected officers, they settled down to earnest discussion of political affairs in this State at the present time and appointed two committees, to act in conjunction with the Wage Earners' Club, first to defeat Senator Elmer A. Stevens, an antagonist to labor, who voted against every bill favoring the laboring man at the last session of the Legislature, who is seeking re-election; and secondly to act toward the establishment of a municipal gas and electric lighting plant in Somerville. This committee comprises Edward C. Mahoney, George E. Gookin, 2d, and E. H. Marks, while the committee on Stevens' candidacy is comprised of George E. Gookin, 1st, C. E. Butterworth and E. H. Marks.

Thomas M. Nolan, president of the Somerville Wage Earners' Club, who is a member of the Independence League, addressed the meeting and said:

"I thoroughly believe in the principles and objects of this league. This is going to admit to membership those who could not join a strictly wage earners' club, and while my heart and soul are in the Wage Earners' fight, still I will work hard for the good of this organization, and I hope to see it spread and its membership increased. This Independence League is a strictly non-partisan organization. It confines itself to no party."

The president was empowered to appoint a member in each ward to take charge of the work in his district, and a meeting will be held in two weeks.

WARD 15 LEAGUE ORGANIZES AND ELECTS DELEGATES

The Ward 15 branch of the Independence League was organized last night in the hall at No. 814 East Eighth street, South Boston, with the following named officers: W. H. Monks, president; Richard Walsh, vice-president, and J. F. Lally, secretary-treasurer.

R. T. Allen, who opened the meeting, spoke of the great progress the league is making in the State and in the city, and impressed the members very much by saying that affiliation with the Independence League gives the voters a chance to think for themselves and the opportunity to choose representatives who will work for the best interests of the majority of the people.

President Monks spoke at length of the way the voters of Ward 15 have been abused by the dictators and boss leaders of the ward, and strongly proclaimed that the formation of this league at this time would give the voters of the Bay View end of the ward the chance to speak their own opinions and to vote for men who will work for this end of the ward.

Vice-President Walsh also spoke of the good the league will accomplish for the ward, and Secretary Lally declared he was glad to be an officer and member of the Ward 15 Independence League. Delegates to the State convention in Faneuil Hall on Saturday were chosen as follows: Messrs. Monks, Walsh, Lally, Gallagher and Daley.

LEAGUE MOVEMENT IN NEEDHAM SHOWS GREAT STRENGTH

The Independence League movement was launched in Needham last night by the formation of a temporary organization and the issue of a call for a public meeting Wednesday night in G. A. R. Hall, at which prominent State leaders of the organization will address those interested in the movement.

The league in Needham starts under especially favorable auspices, and will have as a nucleus almost the entire membership of the local Carpenters' Union, including S. F. Keith, Irving R. Stowell and John Benbow, all prominent members, the first two being members of the Carpenters' District Council and temporary officers of the league.

The members of the league in Needham are manifesting great enthusiasm over the movement, the formation of some such organization designed to give the independent voters an influence in politics having been under discussion before the local carpenters' union for some time. Members of the painters' union, the local grocery clerks, teamsters, and, in fact, men in all walks of life are joining in the movement. What lends especial strength to the league in Needham is the fact that some of the leaders are men who have been prominent in the councils of both of the two great political parties, but have grown tired of boss domination in each and desire to register their protest against it at the polls.

MANY NEW MEMBERS FLOCK TO JOIN THE LOWELL LEAGUE

Special to the Boston American.

LOWELL, Sept. 18.—M. A. Lee, secretary of the Independence League of this city, expressed his satisfaction to a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day over the way the organization is growing. New members are coming forward every day and the next meeting, which will be held on Thursday evening of this week, promises to be a rouser.

At Thursday's meeting delegates will be selected to attend the State convention to be held at Faneuil hall next Saturday. There is a widespread sentiment here in favor of the Independence movement which has become so prevalent throughout the country. It is already assured that the new organization will have an important bearing on the politics of this city.

FORM INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE WHERE THE PILGRIMS LANDED

Special to the Boston American.

PLYMOUTH, Sept. 18.—A branch of the Independence League of Massachusetts was formed here last night, and amid enthusiastic speeches against the trusts, party bosses and grafters, the citizens who enrolled themselves as members of the Plymouth branch elected officers for their league and will elect delegates to the State convention in Faneuil Hall, Boston, on Saturday next, to nominate a State ticket for the coming election in November, at a meeting to be held Thursday night.

The meeting was held in the parlor of the Hotel Samoset. The citizens who organized the league elected Charles M. P. Sampson, a Mason, and a well known citizen, as President; and George M. Harlow, a prominent business man, as secretary. The speakers were Herbert Andrews, William Smith and John Fraher, all men interested in the interests of the wage workers and laboring men.

The speeches of the members were of the sort which mean that Plymouth will soon have a league which will become a factor in this section, and its voice is sure to be heard on all matters in which the people of the town are interested. The members will not tolerate grafters or party bosses, and corporation-ruled office seekers will be strongly opposed at every election.

"We want men in whom we can trust," said Mr. Fraher, "and the minute we find that they can't be trusted they will be ousted and shown up publicly to their disgrace. We will not tolerate men whose bosses are the moneyed corporations. There are plenty of good, honest men who will come to the front and work for the people, the working people and the laboring classes, and these are the men we want and we'll get them."

INDEPENDENT SPIRIT IN WORCESTER WILL RULE IN POLITICS

Special to the Boston American.

WORCESTER, Sept. 18.—The Independence League of this city is the liveliest organization of the kind that this city has ever seen. The spirit of independence in political action is in the air here. The convention at Faneuil Hall on Saturday, when a ticket representative of the thought of the organization will be selected, is the chief topic of conversation in the political and business world.

William Crosbie, president of the Worcester branch, is working with might and main in the interests of the movement. He was at the head of the Painters' Union for many years. He is a splendid musician and has a wide acquaintanceship.

John S. Noonan is the secretary of the organization here. He is active in the interests of labor. Mr. Noonan has been more or less connected with political movements along the lines of the Independence League for many years.

NEW WARD 14 LEAGUE DEMANDS ELECTION OF HONEST OFFICIALS

With stirring speeches endorsing the principles and aims of the Independence League of Massachusetts, the citizens of Ward 14 met at No. 712 Broadway, South Boston last night and formed a branch of the Independence League of Massachusetts, electing permanent officers and appointing delegates to represent the League at the State Convention to be held in Faneuil Hall on Saturday, September 22.

The members were most enthusiastic over the bright prospects for the league in Ward 14, and declare that they will do everything in their power to make the branch a big factor. They declared that they had long enough endured the actions of party bosses and corporation ruled office holders, and that they intended to elect men who were the selections of the people and who could be trusted to vote as the people who elected them wished, and not as the present corporation-paid office holders do.

The members of the league elected as officers: President, Mark A. Collins; vice-president, John F. Higgins, and secretary, James E. O'Brien. These men are well known in Ward 14 and will have charge of the league's affairs.

Speeches were made by all three of the officers elected and they called to the attention of the citizens the good which would come from the work of the Independence League, not only in this State but in every State in the Union.

"Let us have honest men to fill our offices," said President Collins. "Let us elect men who will do what the people want, and not what the corporations want. These honest men, and we can find honest men to fill our offices, are the ones we want. We are the people who want representation in the branches of our government which make our laws. We are the people—we are the voters. Why should we be ruled by corporations who pay the senators and representatives whom we elect to do as they are bid.

"Now is the time to act. We have waited long enough and our opportunity has come. Don't make the mistake which we have made in the past and let this great opportunity get away. Take advantage of it, and the day won't be far off when the workingman will be at the helm getting an equal chance, if not a better one, than the man who has the money."

YOUNG MEN IN WARD 21 ENTHUSIASTIC OVER LEAGUE AIMS

An active branch organization of the Independence League has been formed in Ward 21, composed chiefly of young men who are interested in the movement. A meeting at which unusual enthusiasm prevailed was held at No. 2788 Washington street, when John J. Sullivan was elected president, Jeremiah Callahan, vice-president, and Albert A. Miner, secretary.

The meeting was addressed by George Davis of Ward 8, who explained the objects of the league. Delegates will be selected at a meeting to be held probably this evening. This branch of the league is entitled to four delegates, and that number will attend the convention.

One of the young men who has taken off his coat in the interest of the organization is "Gene" O'Connor, Jr., who has a wide acquaintance in the baseball world and other spheres of sport. This is what Mr. O'Connor had to say about the new organization:

"Every young man of Ward 21 should get in line with this big Independence League movement. It's a sure winner for all the people. 'Millionaire' Democrats are due for theirs. Labor has never had its share of American government. If all workmen of the old Bay State get in to support the new move right, they will. 'No graft' is the Independence League keynote. That's better than all this talk of tariff or reciprocity.

"Give the workman a chance. He's honest. Lincoln said so—Jefferson, too. Labor holds the balance of power if the Independence League wins, as it should here now. Federal and city ownership, and direct vote for United States Senators will then be achieved."

NOLAN STILL INSISTS SILER WAS A ROBBER

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Unless Billy Nolan, Battling Nelson's manager, changes his mind, and there is little possibility of his doing that, even more sensational charges than are already preferred against George Siler, the referee, who acted in the Gans-Nelson fight, will be heard.

Nolan to-day stated that he has scandalous information which, when given out, will make the veteran referee bow his head in shame and will surprise the entire pugilistic world. Nolan will not say just what information he possesses, but it is believed that besides stories of the last battle, he holds some interesting news about the McGovern-Gans fight, which Siler refereed.

Offer Proof of Robbery.

Nolan still insists that he was robbed by Siler, and to prove to the world that his assertion is true and that he is not one of those losers who hollers because his man lost, he has issued a challenge to Siler to meet him before a body of five able judges and debate the matter of the recent Goldfield fight.

"If I cannot make Siler look like a deuce spot and prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that he deliberately robbed Nelson of victory, I will quit the Dane forever and hide myself away where I will never again be seen in public.

"To ask me to leave Bat would be to ask me to cut off my head, but so positive am I that I can win in a debate with Siler on the honesty of this fight that I am willing to hold to the foregoing offer," said Nolan.

Says Siler Never Saw Blow.

"Siler stood directly in back of Gans when the knockout or what he called foul blow was landed. He never saw it. Gans doubled up. A cry from Gans's corner of 'fall down' rang through the ring and Joe fell to the floor apparently in great pain.

"Siler by this time had turned around and asked Gans: 'Are you hurt?' Fully fifty seconds elapsed before the referee gave his decision. I knew he did not see the blow and demanded that a doctor examine Gans, something which is my privilege as Nelson's manager. Siler brushed me aside.

"All through the battle I felt certain that there was a plot on foot to beat us. I guarded myself against every possible thing save Siler, for I had the utmost confidence in him, but he handed it to me.

"When I was in Chicago last George was a continual visitor. He praised Bat for his good work, told him he had no equal and everything that led us to believe that he was our friend. In sympathy for Siler we agreed on him, and robbery was our reward.

Declares He Won Fight.

"I have been in many battles, not glove fights, and with tougher and wiser men than Siler, and have won out, for right will out, and I will not give up on Siler until I have proven beyond a doubt that he robbed us, even if it costs me every dollar I own in the world.

"I have a line on the best evidence that can be secured and before I leave Chicago you can rest assured I will spring a sensation that will make the dead quiver in their graves.

"The best illustration that Siler was against us was shown in the tactics he used to separate the fighters. George, as everybody else, knows Nelson's best work is in the clinches. The articles stated clearly that the referee was not to lay his hands on either man. Siler can read English and knows that articles are law.

Violates Rules in Articles.

"Still all through the fight he insisted on separating the men and in a way such as no other referee ever employed. As soon as the men were in a clinch he would grab Nelson by the hair and pull him away. As he did this, it left an opening for the 'skunk' and he pelted away right and left. The pictures here are the best illustration I can give.

"All the evidence in the world that Nelson was the better man was shown from the twenty-fifth round on, when the fans around the ringside were offering 5 to 1 on Nelson, with no takers. The celebrated referee, Eddie Graney, who was a strong admirer of Gans and who had wagered much on the colored man's chances, got busy after that round betting off his money. So few takers were there that he failed to get it all placed.

"The reports of the fight were garbled and the stories of the Dane's battered condition and his illness were all false. They handed it to me and used Siler as their tool, but right will out, and as sure as there is a sunset in the west to-night I will see this battle through, and stand ready to wager that I will come out of the turmoil with flying colors."

PICTURES TO TELL THE TRUTH OF BATTLE.

WHILE we are complaining bitterly about the dirty deal given us by Siler we are satisfied to wait until the pictures are put on exhibition. A camera never lies. Fight fans who read the story here will know our side of it. If the pictures tell what we have said then we trust the public will believe we have been robbed. If the pictures show us up as liars, then we will go way back and sit down.—BILLY NOLAN.

Murphy's Cubs, who now view the pennant race secure among the palms, rubber plants and sun flowers of the roof garden, stand ready at the elevator well to-day to greet the nine underfed young fellows under Captain Tenney who came up from the cellar to engage in combat with them. That these garden champeens expect to fatten their average in the three times scuffle is putting it mildly. Whether the latter will be able to play or merely stand up and be battered to death, still yet again, remains to be seen.

The Boston tribe has had two days this week without a thing to do and the chances are they have become stale with so much loafing. As this is the longest rest these nine men have had since the season opened excuses may properly be forthcoming if they don't get the largest end of the score.

The West Siders are playing the best ball of the season. This doesn't faze the Boston team, however, as it generally is the poorest squad in the league that's correct that takes the game away from the leaders.

The battery work to-day will probably be done by Dorner and Brown. Both teams will also have the usual line-ups in place. The grounds have been overhauled and are in excellent condition for the last visit of the Chicago team. The Cubs play here three days and will only be satisfied with three games out of that number.

PICK JOE TRACY TO COME HOME FIRST

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Not only machines but likewise the drivers are being weighed in the consideration of the prospective outcome of the Vanderbilt elimination to be driven on Long Island next Saturday morning. While it is generally admitted that Robertson is the most dashing of drivers, it is likewise true that Joe Tracy, who will drive the Locomobile, is the most calculating of the American operators. Barring accident, Tracy is assured of a place on the American team, and by many he is picked as the most probable winner of first place. Tracy's record in the past shows him to be a most cautious driver, a man who considers his machine at every turn, and does not sacrifice the same in order to get more speed. He is a general as well as operator. There was a time, however, when Tracy was not so considerate of his machine or competitors. He was a veritable fault finder. When he tied up with Andrew Riker of the Loco Company he underwent a course of sprouts that has proven beneficial to him. Mr. Riker, the designer of the car, had ideas of his own, and made Tracy drive according to the scheme, the result being success in great measure. Tracy has already attained the highest speed recorded on the course, at one time reaching ninety miles an hour on one of the straightaways. He is considered dangerous indeed.

The Haynes car recently reached the course and under the guidance of J. W. Haynes was sent several times around. The car is the lightest horse-powered machine entered and upon being asked why he did not build a car of greater horsepower Mr. Elwood Haynes said that he believed the car entered would average a very high rate of speed for the entire distance; that primarily the object of a race of this kind is to develop the motor car industry, and Mr. Haynes thinks that the purpose is best served by entering a machine of the regular class and proving its worth, rather than a specially built racer that has no more resemblance to the maker's product than a single cylinder runabout has to a four-cylinder automobile.

He predicts that the "Haynes" will be able to prove that it has the speed necessary to make a good showing in a race of this kind and the strength to withstand the great strain, and will be well repaid with the satisfaction of knowing that "Haynes" owners are furnished with all the features so thoroughly tested.

R. R. Ross is organizing a special railroad party to take in the Vanderbilt finals. It will leave here the evening previous to the race and arrive at Long Island in season to witness the start of the big international. The car will be shifted from the Buffalo train to the Long Island course and the visitors will be able to enjoy all the comforts of home and hotel without having to hustle for the same.

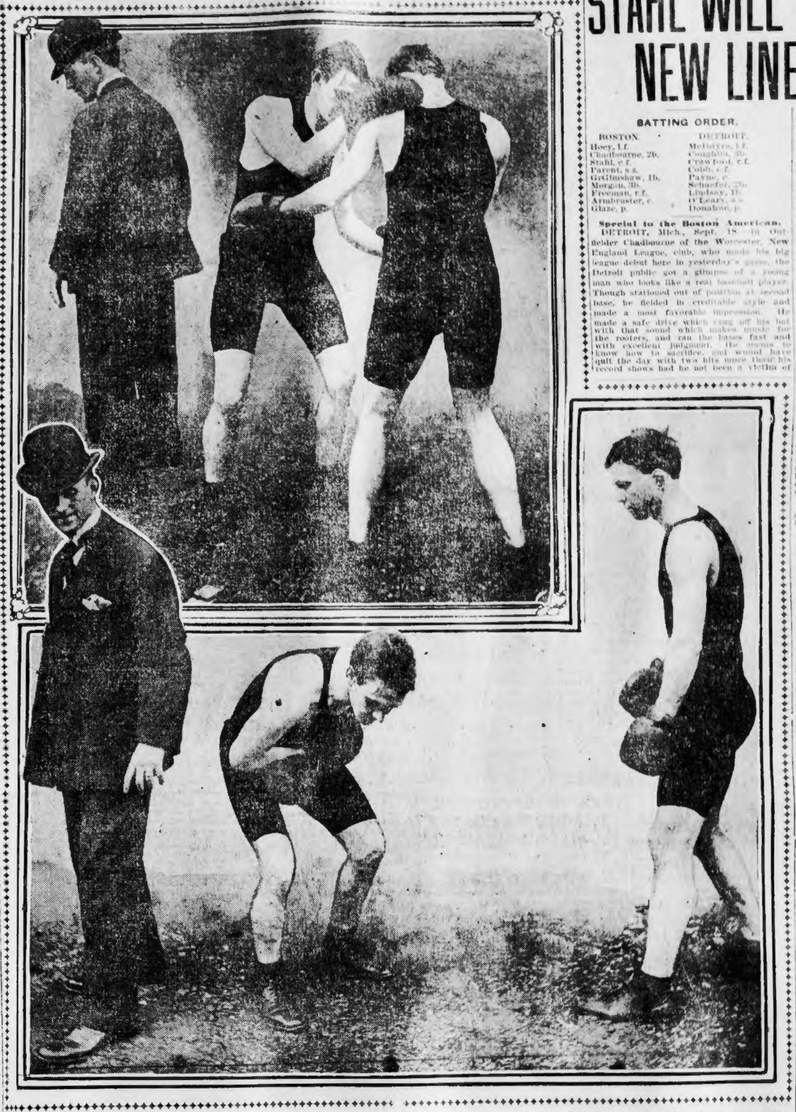
Harry Fosdick, of the Harry Fosdick Company, has returned from his camp at Belgrade Lakes, and is now preparing for an active campaign. The new policy and line of cars to be handled by this company will be announced in a few days.

WILL DETROIT MAGNATES QUIT

DETROIT, Sept. 18.—Because of the report that Ban Johnson, president of the American League, wants President Yawkey and Secretary Navin to take up their grips and quit the Detroit Club and let more congenial magnates gain control, there is a plainly discernible spirit of unrest at the baseball headquarters here. How Ban will make the present controllers get out is not known, but somehow or other he always finds a way out of all kinds of complications, and it is thought it will prove true in the present case unless Yawkey and Navin swear allegiance to him and the American League.

NELSON SHOWS HOW THE ALLEGED FOUL WAS MADE.



The upper picture illustrates exactly how Nelson (according to the Nelson-Nolan version) struck the foul blow in his memorable battle with Joe Gans at Goldfield, Nev., Labor Day, and also shows the position of Referee Siler, his back to the men, when Nelson landed. From the reproduction it will be seen that the blow struck above the belt and sustains the contention of Nolan and Nelson that it was fair.

The lower picture (according to the Nelson-Nolan version) shows Gans doubling up after the punch, Nelson stepping back, and Referee Siler just turning around.

Posed especially for the Boston American camera at Chicago by Battling Nelson, Billy Nolan and Mattie Fitzpatrick, representing Gans.

REDS AFTER BOB UNGLAUB

BROOKLYN, Sept. 18.—It is said that the reason that Manager Ned Hanlon, of the Reds, took his recent trip through Pennsylvania, the home of the outlaw league, was to sign Bob Unglaub, formerly of the Boston Americans. Hanlon won't say what measure of success he met in his quest of the erring Bob, but it is a cinch that if there is such a thing as getting Unglaub back to the majors again, Hanlon will land him. The only comment Hanlon would make on his mission is that "Unglaub is signed with Williamsport for the rest of the season."

'DUSTY RHOADES BEST PITCHER'

—RED DONAHUE

DETROIT, Sept. 18.—"Looking over the work of all the pitchers in the country for the season, I should be disposed to give Dusty Rhoades the title of 'premier boxman,'" says Red Donahue. "He has a good arm, but a better head, and brains are what a pitcher needs worst of all. You don't see Rhoades breaking his arm when he has his game won. He saves something for the day when he finds himself in need of all his strength and skill. I wish things would turn out so he could have a chance at the Cubs. I'd have a little bet down on Cleveland the day he pitched."

LIVELY BOUT AT CHELSEA TONIGHT

These whirlwinds of ring action, Kid Goodman and Aurelio Herrera, the Mexican, after some of the stiffest training preparation two fighters ever went through are ready to climb into the inclosure at the Lincoln A. C. to-night and battle for supremacy for fifteen rounds.

But first they will weigh at 3 o'clock and must not tip the scales above 135 pounds, else lose their forfeits. Both are sure they will come within the required weight, as it is an easy mark for either one to make and be strong and at his best.

The coming together of this pair of fast steppers is what the fans have been waiting for, as the previous bout between them was one of the noted ring contests in local pugdom and of the highest sensational character for the fierceness exhibited by both boys. They are naturally tigerish in their fighting tactics and lightning fast when the bell sets them agoing.

The Kid lost to the Greaser when they last met, but it was only due to the latter's wonderful spurt in the last half of the fight. There are many ring followers who are confident that the Mexican cannot repeat his wonderful finishing streak and that the Kid will get him this time.

It's a royal chance for Goodman to get right in the front line of the game, for a win over the Mexican would give him the privilege of going after the lightweight title, as Herrera had a match on with Battling Nelson which fell through at the last moment.

DESHLER AND ERNE TO FIGHT

Young Erne and Dave Deshler are to box fifteen rounds to a decision at the Lincoln Club, Wednesday, September 26. The match will be at catch weights. Jim Lloyd will box Johnny Mahan in one preliminary, while Jack Ahearn will box Jack Williams in the other bout. Owing to the primaries being held on the previous day, this date was selected.

GHETTO CHAMP IS CONFIDENT

"I expect to beat the Mexican to-night," said Kid Goodman to-day when he came into the BOSTON AMERICAN office with Tom Murray, the well-known Rhode Island sporting man.

"I never felt better in my life." And he looked the part, as he is hard as nails and right on edge for a hot ring encounter.

Tom Murray, the boniface of the Diamond Hill hostelry, where the Kid has been training, is confident that the Kid will trim the Westerner and has plenty of mazuma to do the talking.

The Kid is very much pleased with his training quarters at Diamond Hill and is thinking of buying the spot, which is only a few miles from Franklin, Mass., and establishing an ideal training quarters for the fighting fraternity.

Special to the Boston American.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 18.—In Outfielder Chadbourne of the Worcester, New England League, club, who made his big league debut here in yesterday's game, the Detroit public got a glimpse of a young man who looks like a real baseball player. Though stationed out of position at second base, he fielded in creditable style and made a most favorable impression. He made a safe drive which rang off his bat with that sound which makes music for the rooters, and ran the bases fast and with excellent judgment. He seems to know how to sacrifice, and would have quit the day with two hits more than his record shows had he not been a victim of sensational catches by Schaefer and McIntyre.

Chick Stahl is having his troubles with a batting order. He admitted after yesterday's game that he might give it a switch to-day, but professed himself puzzled as to the way to go about it. Chick is embarrassed by a plethora of left-handed batsmen. Yesterday he had Hoey, Chadbourne and himself in a row at the top of the list and Grimshaw and Freeman lower down. He wants a right-handed hitter in the second position, and if Parent plays regularly will put him there. He also fears that his team will prove weak before left-handed pitchers unless the scouts can dig him up some more right-handed sluggers for use against such men as [illegible], White, Killian and Patten.

However, he says it's all right if the apparently ungainly combination works as it did in the opening game of the series.

PULLIAM WON'T RESIGN BERTH

—BARNEY DREYFUS

PITTSBURG, Sept. 18.—President Barney Dreyfus of the Pirates, says he doesn't believe that there is any truth in the report that recently emanated from this city to the effect that if Harry Pulliam is re-elected to the berth of president of the National League next December he will resign it.

"So far as I know, Pulliam will serve if re-elected," said Dreyfus, "although he has not confided his plans to me. I hardly think that he would ask any of the club owners to vote for him if he didn't intend to serve them afterward. It is all right enough to seek vindication, if vindication is needed, but it would not look just right for Mr. Pulliam or any other man under similar conditions to step down and out at such a time."

WORRY
—A Disease Among Men

Lots of men worry unnecessarily over symptoms, the importance of which are greatly exaggerated.
The ailments are often very slight.
But the constant worry becomes in itself a sort of disease.
Very many men who come to me are really suffering greatly, yet unnecessarily, from a slight derangement.
The quickness of their cure is, to them, little short of miraculous.
My experience has been so large with all classes of diseases peculiar to men that I can quickly discover the cause of your trouble.
A SHORT CONSULTATION IS ALL THAT IS NECESSARY.
I will frankly tell you what you need.
My charges are extremely moderate.
You can see me personally.
I will be in my office today.
Why not call and talk it over?

Cook Book Free to Writer of Every Recipe Printed

NEW ENGLAND women have enthused right off quick over the BOSTON AMERICAN'S Economy Cook Book. Hundreds of recipes were received to-day in response to the Economy Editor's request.

The first of the preserving recipes are printed to-day. The writer of each will receive a copy of the Economy cook book, free.

A corner of this page will be devoted daily to the interchange of those cooking secrets which have made the housekeepers of New England famous the world over.

Some of the choicest recipes ever devised will be contributed, and all of them will be well worth keeping. In order that housewives may be able to preserve these cooking hints in permanent form, the BOSTON AMERICAN will give free to the contributor of every recipe printed a copy of the Boston American's Economy Cook Book.

And it's just what you've been looking for for years. It's a blank book of 120 pages, ten inches by seven inches in size.

It's a practical, common sense cook book for every-day use, bound in substantial oilcloth, with leaves of heavy paper, so recipes clipped from the AMERICAN can be pasted in firmly. It has an index of heavy ruled white paper.

THE "ECONOMY COOK BOOK" IS JUST WHAT YOU'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR.

Recipes that begin with "Take the whites of a dozen eggs," etc., are not wanted. Common sense, every-day, sensible, economical recipes are what is desired.

It's the preserving season now. We have begun there. New England housewives are famed for their delicious preserves, jams, jellies, "chow-chow," Chili sauces, pickles and canned fruits.

Send along your best preserving recipes. When one of yours is published an "Economy Cook Book" will be promptly mailed to your address.

Write out your favorite preserving recipe to-day.

EXCELLENT CHILI SAUCE

TWELVE ripe tomatoes, chopped fine; two red peppers, chopped fine; three onions, chopped fine; two cups cider vinegar, two heaping teaspoons ginger, two heaping teaspoons cinnamon, one heaping teaspoon cloves, two heaping tablespoons sugar, two heaping teaspoons salt.

MRS. JOSEPH L. CONNELL,
No 50A Linden Park street, Roxbury.

RUMMAGE PICKLE

TWO quarts green tomatoes, one quart red tomatoes, three small bunches of celery, three large onions, three red sweet peppers, three green sweet peppers, one small head cabbage, one large ripe cucumber, one-half coffee cup salt. Chop the vegetables, cover with salt and let stand over night; drain well in the morning and add three pints vinegar, two pounds dark brown sugar, one teaspoon of mustard, one teaspoon of pepper. Cook until clear, which will be about one hour, and seal. This makes a delicious pickle.

MARGARET A. GLYNN.
No. 259 Cherry street, West Newton.

PICALILI

TAKE one peck of green tomatoes, slice and sprinkle well with salt. Let it stand all night. In the morning drain, then slice 2 quarts of onions, 4 green peppers, one box of whole mixed spices. Take the peppers and spices and sew in a bag, then add one pound brown sugar, three quarts vinegar. Boil two hours.

MRS. G. BLUEMER.
No. 11 Dewey street, Roxbury.

SPICED JELLY

CUT one peck of apples in small pieces, add one-quarter of pound of whole mixed spices, cover with three quarts of vinegar and three quarts of water; boil slowly two hours, put in a bag made of cheese cloth, let drip twelve hours (or longer), then put in equal parts of juice and sugar, quart for quart. Boil until jellied, and you have a delicious jelly to serve with meats.

GERTRUDE E. CONNORS.
No. 426 Chelmsford street, Lowell.

SPICED CRANBERRIES.

BOIL together for ten minutes four pou brown sugar, one pint vinegar, two t spoons cassia, one tablespoon cloves, tablespoons allspice. Then add five pou cranberries and simmer slowly for two hours. Keep in stone jar closely covered. This is very nice with cold meats.

MRS. S. D. ALDEN.
No. 502 Beacon street, Boston.

BARBERRY JELLY

THE berries should be thoroughly cooked and drained through a jelly bag; one pound of sugar to a pound of juice. Boil gently, removing any scum that may arise, until the juice thickens when dropped on a plate. Then pour into tumblers and seal.

MRS. A. BROWN.
No. 34 Kinnard street, Cambridgeport.

Advice to Anxious Sweethearts

By Beatrice Fairfax

A QUESTION OF MANNERS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
Is it proper for me to tip my hat when I am walking with my friend when he meets a lady friend of his and I do not know her?

A GENTLEMAN should always lift his hat when in company with any one, whether they bow to some one he knows or not. This is done out of courtesy to your companion.

A VITAL PROBLEM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
Will you kindly settle the following dispute: A man says a man can change his life; that is, from a fast to a good, true life for love of a good, true woman. Woman says: This is impossible; that a man having broken all natural laws will certainly after a time become tired, and no good woman should accept such a man's love. Who is right—Man or Woman? WOMAN.

CERTAINLY a man can become a good, true man, no matter how low he has fallen, if he will only want to, either for some good woman's love or because he wants to be better himself.

But it is too hard a task for any woman to set herself to reform a man unless he feels the desire himself, and quite a hopeless one.

So you see it is really the man himself who must do it.

HER PLACE TO ASK

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I have worked with a young man over seven months and I love him very much because he is very friendly with me. I would like to ask him to call at our house, but I do not think it is proper for me to do so. M. F.

IF the young man seems to care for you it is quite proper for you to ask him to call. He could not call without an invitation, you know. He probably wonders why you have not asked him before now.

Mothers, Watch the First Sign of Listlessness in Your Children

LISTLESSNESS and moping in children are indicative of three things.

1. That the little one is "below par"—that is to say, that its general health is poor, and needs toning up.

2. That it is in actual bad health, perhaps from incipient lung trouble, or something of that kind.

3. That it is sickening with some infectious illness or suffering from gastric derangement.

If the listlessness suddenly appears in a child previously active and healthy, the last cause should always be suspected. The child should be put to bed, and if the temperature is over 100 degrees F. the doctor ought to be sent for.

In any case the child should be kept in bed and given light diet, milk, barley water, etc., so that if symptoms of illness are incipient their development may be watched and promptly treated.

Remember the old saying, that "an hour lost in the treatment of a sick child is as bad as a day lost in the treatment of a sick man."

Of course, listlessness and lassitude may be caused in a child, or in anyone else, by over-fatigue, in which case rest in bed is most important. It should never be forgotten that over-fatigue, which is bad for anyone, is doubly bad for a child. It has not seldom been followed by serious illness.

Too Many Tonics

It is a great mistake in these cases to place too much reliance on tonics. They are well enough in their way, but they should be prescribed by a doctor, to suit the child's age and digestion.

The indiscriminate giving of tonics to children does a lot of harm. They upset the stomach, some of them cause constipation, others bring on biliousness, and in the end they often do more harm than good. It is far better to strengthen the system by an outdoor life and exercises which will develop the chest.

It is not half sufficiently realized how much our physical vigor is influenced by our chest capacity. Remember that the vitalizing of the blood—and remember that "the blood is the life"—depends upon the oxygen in the atmosphere which we inhale into our lungs. The more our lungs are developed the more oxygen will they contain.

Now, if the shoulders are contracted, the chest will be hollowed inward. If they are thrown well back the chest will gently curve outward.

In the latter shape it need hardly be said the capacity of the lungs for holding air is much greater than in the former. The person with a well developed chest will therefore have purer and richer blood than one whose chest is contracted. See how this applies to the listless child who is "below par."

Develop Lungs

His blood is poor; there is no doubt about that. If it were not, he would not be below par. One of the first things, therefore, to raise the standard of his health is to develop his lung capacity.

This must on no account be done by suddenly commencing violent exercises.

Quiet calisthenic exercises, Swedish drill, gymnastics and outdoor games will gradually—that is to say, in the course of a few months—enlarge the actual girth of the chest, and with this will come bigger lungs, purer blood and more vigor and tone to the whole body.

It is too often overlooked that gymnastics have a very great effect in enlarging the lungs. They increase the size of the chest, which practically means that they make the lung-case bigger. If the case is larger, the contents have naturally more room to grow.

There is no need to explain how vastly important this is while the bony framework of the body is developing. An amusing story is told by a gymnastic instructor which shows how exercise can increase the size of the chest.

Great Results

He took a dozen soldiers to train as gymnastic instructors for the army.

He says: "The muscular additions to the arms and shoulders and the expansion of the chest were so great as to have absolutely a ludicrous and embarrassing result, for before the fourth month several of the men could not get into their uniform jackets and tunics without assistance, and when they got them on they could not get them to meet by a hand's breadth.

"In a month more they could not get into them at all, and new clothing had to be procured, pending the arrival of which the men had to go to and from the gymnasium in their greatcoats. One of these men had gained five inches in actual girth of chest."

To ensure the best possible development of the chest is, then, one of the chief things we can do for the listless child. Until its bodily vigor is improved, exhortations to it to rouse itself from its lazy, listless ways are uselessly cruel.

Fresh air and good nourishment, sea air and cheerful companions are also, of course, necessary.

Learn the Secret of Married Happiness

MUCH has been written on "how to be happy when married," but very little stress has been laid on the cause of many unhappy marriages, which can be briefly summed up in the words that "Love is a woman's whole existence, but for a man it is a thing apart."

A girl's wedding day is the greatest day of her life. It puts the crown on her womanhood. She has been educated to expect marriage to open for her the gate to a wider and richer existence; therefore, to her, love seems the whole essence of life.

But to most men their marriage day is not nearly as important as the day they became partner in some large business, or the day which saw the realization of their ambition—the day they achieved success before their fellow men.

Marriage to men means the creating of a home, a place where they can retire from the din of life's battlefield, and the love which prompts them to make it is just as real as the woman's, only not as absorbing.

It is, literally, a thing apart from their daily life. As a great poet has said, "Man boasts two sides to his character. One he shows the world, and one he keeps for the woman he loves."

This, however, does not satisfy the average woman, who desires herself, her concerns, her interests, etc., to be first and foremost in the heart and mind of the man she has married, and, instead of accepting the inevitable when the honeymoon is over, wisely realizing that the looser she holds the chain the more firmly will she rivet the links, she pulls them tight and strikes the first nail in her love coffin.

It is natural to her, as she goes about her daily tasks, to muse with tender thoughts on the man she loves.

No wise woman, however, will ask her husband on his return from a hard day's work how often he has thought of her, and be angry when he replies "not once."

The secret of most of these—as far as women are concerned—is, that they expect too much from love. Let them realize that love is but one part of a man's life, and there will be a greater bond of union established between them and their protectors and partners.

REGARDING THE HAIR

THE hair should not be brushed more on one side than the other. If the hair is to be of even thickness and beauty on both sides of the head, one side of the hair and of the scalp should be brushed as evenly as the other. The usual practice is to draw all of the hair over either the right or left shoulder, so that only one side of the scalp gets the stimulation that comes from the brushing.

HOW EATING AFFECTS BEAUTY

ABOUT fifteen years ago women woke up to the epicurean delights of the hors-d'oeuvre and the savory, and ever since there has been a clamor for beauty doctors and face masseuses.

The "bread-and-butter miss" sung by Byron had a complexion of milk and roses, but the modern young lady, who starts her dinner with olives and anchovies and ends the evening with Welsh rarebit at supper, has to take the artificial "make-up."

An unnatural diet causes unnatural wear and tear, and steaming, strapping, or face massage with cream at a dollar a jar will never completely remove the traces left by the highly-spiced important item in nearly every meal of the day.

CHAPTER CIX.

In the Safe

THERE were two figures, he saw, as he came nearer; two men whom he recognized in the dim, uncertain light as Marr and the man he had been introduced to at Rumfit's house, who had secured the Herries diamond from the Bougelstein division.

"Why have you come here?" Mr. Parslow demanded, brusquely. "I have always said that I will not have these—these matters of business brought to my house."

"Very likely you have," answered Marr. "But, you see, this happens to be a matter of business that had to be brought to your house whether you liked it or didn't! Business that couldn't be put off."

"You—you don't mean that there's danger?" cried Parslow quickly. There was a sharp note of anxiety in his voice.

"You can put it that way if you like," said Marr grimly. "Yes, there's danger—that's as good a way as any of expressing it. Danger for every one."

"Quick! tell me the worst at once!" gasped the old "fence."

He was very frightened. Marr's ominous words had confirmed his first suspicions. Danger! Why else should they have come except to warn him?

Had Rumfit been dropped on, and some of his dealings with the thieves' receiver at Brooklyn come to light?

If only he had been content to drop the business altogether, when he had retired on the competence he had amassed out of buying thieves' plunder! He ought to have dropped it altogether, instead of being tempted by exceptional plums that came in his way afterwards; they weren't worth it, at the cost of his peace of mind; and he was getting too old a man, he admitted to himself, to have the nerve for risks.

"What has come out?" he demanded breathlessly. "Quick! don't keep me in suspense." He was almost whimpering. "What has come out?"

A Clue to Hortense

"A good deal has come out—more than ever you dream of, as Jarman here will tell you!" said Marr, looking at him oddly. "But we can't go into it here."

"Come with me."

Parslow was in agony; from Marr's manner he feared the worst. What could have happened?

He might have to fly, at his time of life, to avoid arrest; might have to give up this house, the spacious gardens in which he took so much delight, his pleasant circle of friends—he could still hear Sevenway's voice singing with wonderful lung power some comic song, and it jarred suddenly upon his mood. And what amazement it would cause when it became known in Bensonhurst that Mr. Parslow—"one of the most popular and respected residents of our suburb," as the local papers spoke of him when he had taken the chair at some meeting in the neighborhood—had disappeared and was wanted by the police!

Mr. Parslow's vivid imagination conjured it all up with a pathos that almost reduced him to tears as he walked with the two men toward the house.

"Wait here till I open that window." He pointed to the French window leading to his den. "I'll let you in that way; then no one in the house need see you."

The little white-haired gentleman, looking very limp, hurried through the door and went to the room where the safe stood. The room was in darkness as he entered. Even in the midst of his great agitation of mind the thought flashed upon him as he crossed the threshold that Mlle. Hortense must have been into the room lately, for he detected a faint, lingering perfume that clung to everything the Frenchwoman wore, and as he struck a match he noticed that a tiny embroidered handkerchief was lying on the floor, half-way between the door and the safe—a handkerchief belonging to Hortense.

An Ugly Moment

He lit the gas, locked the door; then threw open the French windows and beckoned to the two men in the dark garden.

They entered, and with a trembling hand Parslow, all the color gone from his face, leaving it almost as white as his hair, drew the curtains across the windows that his visitors might not be seen. Then he turned to Marr.

"Now, tell me quickly, in heaven's name, what has come out?" he cried.

"This, that you've got the Herries diamond, and meant to keep it to yourself, leaving your friends in the cold! That's what's come out!" said Marr.

The accusation was so unexpected that it completely took Parslow off his feet. His jaw dropped. He had to hold the back of a chair to steady himself. The faint echo of a comic song floated in upon them from the drawing room.

"I—I—you say that I've got the Herries diamond? Is—is this some joke, Marr? he stammered, with difficulty articulating the words. "You can't be serious. You know perfectly well that you wired me to go to Brooklyn, and when I got there you handed me a box with a piece of trumpery glass. I thought you were playing a practical joke on an old man, Marr, and it hurt me—it hurt me very much. This is another joke, I suppose? How could I by any possibility have come by the diamond?"

He felt very uncomfortable under the steady scrutiny of Marr's piercing eyes; and he could see that Marr did not believe him.

"It isn't a joke—at least, I very much doubt if you'll find it a joke," said Marr, with a little evil smile on his dark face. "Jarman and I have come for the 'Mirror of the Moon.' The sooner you hand it over the better for you."

A Fair Offer

Marr glanced across at the safe as he spoke.

"But—but I haven't got the diamond, man—your assertion is ridiculous—how could I possibly have got the diamond?" protested Parslow, trembling from head to foot. "How in the name of all that's reasonable could I have got it?"

"It's no good, all this palaver, Parslow. You've got it, and we know you've got it. That young imp of a boy stole it from Rumfit's place, and you ran up against him, got it from him——"

"My dear Marr," began Parslow, quaveringly, elevating two surprised hands.

"You see, we know everything; now you've got to hand it over. If you hadn't been such a treacherous cur, you'd have come straight back to your pals with the stone. But you didn't; you thought you'd stick to it yourself, like the sneaking hound you are.

"Only, you see, we've found you out. Now you shan't have even a share. Come, quick! I haven't patience for a cur like you. Out with it!" cried Marr in a low, threatening voice.

"You're mad; you must be! I never saw the boy, never saw the diamond. If he told you I took it, he was telling you a lie!" quavered Parslow desperately.

He could not bring himself to give up the diamond; he must convince them that the boy had lied.

Marr walked up to him, and looked him full in the eyes, and Parslow blanched; there was such a depth of passion and evil in the dark, swarthy face.

"You're lying—only lies won't save you!" Marr said grimly. "Open that safe. That's where the diamond is, I'll be bound. Do you hear? Open that safe!"

"No, no! I—I give you my word of honor, my dear Marr! You're quite mistaken!"

"Then open the safe and prove it. That's a fair enough offer."

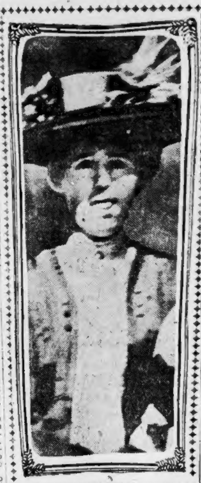
IS THIS YOUR PHOTO? YOU WIN $2 IF IT IS

All You Have to Do Is to Identify It and the Money Is Yours.



THESE are the days when busy women shoppers get their busiest. How the streets teemed and how the stores did hum yesterday with the hosts of women on the search for Fall bargains.

Rather more fun shopping now than in August, isn't it? It's the sort of crispy weather when folks feel like hustling, isn't it?

Hundreds of women shoppers were looking for the BOSTON AMERICAN Camera Man yesterday—the busiest shopping day of the week. He was active as usual.

Here's the snapshot he caught. Do you know the original? If you do, tell her to call and get the award of $2 which is waiting for her. The money is here for identifying the photograph.

If she can't call tell her to send along her photo and a check will be mailed to her address.

The Camera Man gets one of these snapshots of women shoppers every day about noon. Watch out for him. He's apt to catch YOU to-morrow or next day.

B. & A. FARES 2 CENTS A MILE

The reduction in fare promised by the Boston & Albany railroad will go into effect on November 1, when the passenger rate will be made two cents per mile on the entire road.

This will result in a saving of fifty cents between Boston and Albany, of ten cents between Boston and Worcester, and of corresponding sums between all other stations. Rates, however, will be reckoned in multiples of five. If the distance between two stations is six miles the charge will be fifteen cents, and so on.

This change in rates will be do much to minimize the opposition of the parallel electric lines, according to Vice-President Van Etten.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

Business Agent S. M. Lent of Boston Pattern Makers' Association reported at last night's meeting of the executive board that he assisted in the formation of a new local at Taunton last Friday night, together with District Organizer F. E. Bordman and J. J. Jung of New York. Officers will be nominated by the Boston local tomorrow to be elected September 26. At the installation October 3 delegates are expected to be present from Providence, New York, Hartford, New Haven, Worcester, Taunton, Lawrence, Lowell, Lynn and Portsmouth, N. H.

SHEET METAL WORKERS.

Sheet Metal Workers' Union No. 17 decided last night to hold a ball in November, and the following committee was appointed to make arrangements: Edward F. X. McCarthy, chairman; Matthew Walsh, Edward Hennessey, Bert Leavitt, James Moriarty, Joseph Moran, P. J. Hickey, Hobbs Doyle, John Selfridge and Louis Harrington. There is a big demand for union men, it was reported. Business Agent John F. Kennedy is enjoying a two weeks' vacation in Baltimore.

CALLED TO HANDLE STRIKE.

Thomas V. Podzimek, general organizer of the Piano, Organ and Musical Instrument Workers' International Union, who is now in Boston, has been requested to return to Chicago by Local No. 1 of that city to handle a strike of 500 men at the factory of W. W. Kimball Piano Company. The communication stated that the company had ordered the men to begin work at 7:45 instead of 8 a. m. "This proves the necessity of a written agreement," states Organizer Podzimek, "as W. W. Kimball made a verbal agreement in the 1898-99 lockout before the State Board of Arbitration and the Governor not to work his men more than eight hours in the future." Mr. Podzimek will continue his organizing campaign in this city until directed by the international union to comply with the request of the Chicago local. Shop meetings, open mass meetings and personal interviews with members of the craft will be the means to completely unionize the trade in Boston and vicinity.

'NEWSIES' SEEK JURISDICTION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—The quarterly meeting of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor is being held here. The financial report for eleven months of the fiscal year show receipts of $192,890, and the balance on hand October 1, 1905, $114,265. The expenditures were $206,732. By assessments $51,738 has been raised and paid over to the International Typographical Union to assist in its eight-hour fight.

A committee consisting of N. S. Sodekson and S. Rubin of the Boston Newsboys' Union appeared, claiming jurisdiction over those boys working as "Canada" points, that is, the wholesale and retail distribution of newspapers at several points in large cities.

BARRY IN OPEN AIR RALLY TOUR

Edward P Barry, candidate for Governor's Council in the new Third District, will begin his speaking campaign to-night, covering Wards 1, 2, 3 and 4 in Cambridge, which are new wards in the Boston councilor district, in open air rallies at the following places:

Cambridge Field, corner Cambridge and Willow streets, East Cambridge, where Mr. Barry will speak at 8 o'clock; Cambridge street, corner Eighth street, at 8:45 o'clock, and Third and Charles streets, East Cambridge, at 9:20 o'clock. It is the intention of Mr. Barry to speak in all twenty-one wards of the Third Councilor District between to-night and next Monday night. Where Mr. Barry has been unable to secure halls in which to make addresses he will speak in the open air. This is the first time in the history of a councilor battle in Boston that open air rallies have been tried.

SHINGLES HOUSE ON 86TH BIRTHDAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—"Don't judge a man by his years," says Hugh Holmes. "His real age is told by his head and his pulse."

Then the white-haired ex-Mayor of Belleville, N. J., finished the job of shingling his house on his eighty-sixth birthday and, after taking down the scantlings, which he had himself set up, presided, fresh and agile, at the celebration of the anniversary.

WAGE EARNERS' CLUBS MEET.

The Ward 23 Wage Earners' Club has called a special meeting for to-night in old Masonic Hall, Roslindale. The question of indorsing the candidacy of aspirants for office will be considered and a number of prominent labor men will speak. The Ward 14 Wage Earners' Club will open its headquarters in Flood square, South Boston, to-night. The indorsement of candidates will be the principal business at to-morrow night's meeting of the Boston Central Wage Earners' Club at Wells Memorial Building.

LABOR NOTES.

Harness Makers' Union will conduct a smoke talk and reunion of its members and friends to-night at No. 724 Washington street. A number of prominent labor officials will speak.

Coopers' Union No. 58 holds a special meeting to-night in Cohen's Hall, Cross and Endicott streets, to take further action in connection with the strike of the six members employed at the Standard Oil plant in East Boston.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

Big Piano Bargains
Roxbury Storage Salesrooms

Swell Bargains This Week. The prices on the standard high class makes quoted below will not be changed for at least six days. Many fine new and second-hand uprights of other leading first-grade makers will go for so little that you would hardly believe the prices if we quoted them.

Don't Pay Piano Trust Big Profits

Just remember that we pay no commissions of any kind. We have no high rents to pay, no big agents' or retailers' profits to get out of you, no teachers' little "Rake off" to take out of your pocket. All these sums of money must be added to the original legitimate profit of the maker when you buy a piano at the Gilded Piano Warerooms down in the High Rent District—and remember you pay it all.

The Bee of Good Taste

Did You Know, Fair Lady, That He Will Sting Anybody Using Perfumery?

The trusts, the earthquake, foreign riots and all the rest of the news shall not prevent our protesting occasionally against the dreadful, INSISTENT perfumes with which the women of to-day disfigure themselves.

In public places suddenly an awful faintness comes over the crowd. There is a moment of horror, of gasping, and the dazed mind recognizes another one of those big or little, or yellow or black, or fat or thin women that wear the terrific perfumes.

We are glad to be informed, and to publish here, the fact that the self-respecting honey bee—who knows everything about REAL perfume —DETESTS THE ARTIFICIAL, HIDEOUS, HIGH-SMELLING PRODUCT WITH WHICH WOMEN MAKE THEMSELVES TERRIBLE.

The intelligent, sane, moral bee likes good, clean flowers. And it likes good, clean human beings. You may go around its hive as much as you please while you are normal and self-respecting—if you don't bother the combs or the young ones.

But approach the beehive with any one of these terrific, high-smelling "odors" or perfumes attached to your person and the self-respecting bees will pour out and sting you until you leave.

One of our readers informs us that experiment, often repeated, proves absolutely that the bee will not tolerate the insult to flowers, or to womanhood, implied in the wearing of the abnormal and offensive perfumes.

Women, be guided by the wisdom of the bee as you are inspired by that little animal's industry.

Be your own selves. Be the natural flowers that Nature made you. Don't allow anybody to persuade you to make yourselves hideous with the perfumes that are a hundred times worse than the noise of a boiler shop.

You wouldn't go around with a horrible, clanging, banging washboiler or beating drum to disturb the people.

Then don't disturb them with "perfumes" more vicious and unforgivable than the savage tomtom.

Be clean. Throw perfumery away.

A Combine of Kings

Not content with monopolizing all that's worth monopolizing in New York Free State, Thomas F. Ryan is about to join hands with the comate satyr, King Leopold, who monopolizes all that's worth having in the Congo Free State.

Between them, this pair of kings will have complete control of the great rubber industry, King Leopold attending especially to the producer, while King Thomas hands it to the consumer.

The unclad native who collects the rubber in the ironically named Congo Free State knows the ways of monopoly. If the villagers have not obtained their quota the representative of the great Belgian monopolist chops off a few of their hands, burns a few of their huts and flogs a few of their women. By such means the untutored savage is taught that dividends must be kept up, and that upon him rests the duty.

In the New York Free State the great monopolist has no rubber forests, but he has something more profitable. He controls all the trails, and none of the natives may use them without paying toll to King Thomas. His guards hustle them, and step-lively them, and occasionally punch them, but unfortunately cannot cut off hands or burn huts or flog women.

Even under the handicap of the public's puling sentimentality, King Thomas does very well, and King Leopold need not blush to enter a partnership for which the suffocated strap-hanger and the whip-welted aborigine are alike working.

Long live the alliance of the two kings, chief monopolists of the two Free States!

Little Editorials from the People

COUNCILMAN M'GRATH ON THE CITY'S LIGHTING CONTRACT

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Will you kindly give me a little space to make a statement that might interest the taxpayers of Boston and at the same time shed some light on the character of a gentleman very prominently before the public at the present time?

When Josiah Quincy was Mayor of Boston in 1898 he made a ten-years' contract with the Boston Electric Light Company to light the streets of the city. By the introduction and use of a new electric lamp the company was able to save five cents per lamp per day in labor alone. Under the old style lamp it cost the company two cents per lamp per day to trim and clean the lamps, ten cents more to keep a corps of inspectors on the streets to repair and change lamps getting out of order, and one cent per lamp per night to keep inspectors or night patrolmen to see that the lamps burned properly.

After the new lamp was installed the company was able to dispense with trimmers, practically so, at least; it discharged night inspectors and day inspectors altogether, and thus effected a saving of five cents a lamp per day for the stockholders of the Boston Electric Light Company, or $18.25 per year for each lamp paid for by the city.

The Electric Light Company furnishes the city yearly on an average, during the term of the contract, about three thousand lamps, so that this saving of $18.25 per lamp would amount to over $54,000 yearly, and in the ten years of the contract would amount to $540,000.

If Mr. Quincy was exercising ordinary care for the interest of the citizens of Boston he would ascertain if this saving could really be effected, and if so compel the company to reduce the price accordingly, and instead of bonding the city to pay $124 a lamp per year make the price $106. But Mr. Quincy, before the Committee on Public Lighting, admitted that he made no investigation in this respect and said he did not know whether the company would save anything by the use of the new lamp, although he admitted he did know that the old lamps had to be cleaned every day and the new lamps would run ten or eleven days without being cleaned or trimmed, and he did admit that the agreement between the city and the company in force at the time compelled the company to maintain a system of night patrol, and he himself dropped this provision from the new agreement.

Surely these things ought to suggest to him that there would be a saving of labor; but Mr. Quincy did not inquire into it. He bound the city to pay the same price for lamps that it had been paying when it cost the company at least $18.25 a year more to produce it. The result of his fine business ability was that fifty or sixty men were thrown out of employment, the wages paid them by the city through the Electric Light Company was still paid to the company, but went into the pockets of the stockholders as clear profit—$54,000 a year paid the Electric Light Company for ten years for nothing and some sixty men compelled to look for a job. Set it down to the glory of Mr. Quincy.

Is it any wonder that the powerful corporations are backing Mr. Quincy in his efforts to maintain control of the Democratic machine? Mr. Quincy in charge of the machine is "pudding" for the corporations, but the people will not be misled, and in spite of the efforts of the corporations and the treachery of some of the ward bosses, who pose as the friends of the people, but who nevertheless have shown that they mean to sell out to Quincy and the corporations if the people will trust them, will place true and tried friends of the people on guard.

COUNCILMAN P. D. M'GRATH,
Ward 14.

GLAD TO SEE REDUCTION IN SALARY

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I have noticed several requests in the AMERICAN, ostensibly in the interest of "fair play," that you raise the salary of the hardworking and hard-pressed "Hall Room Boys." The "Hall Room Boys" are a type of a class which is of very little value to employers or to anybody else. They are the kind that seek to get ahead by bluff rather than by merit. If your readers would only see it, there is a good lesson taught in the many troubles and trials which come to them in their efforts to get what is not rightfully coming to them. I was pleased to see their small salary cut down, as they deserved, and I hope they will either do something to merit a "raise" or get "fired" soon.

"MERIT."
Boston.

WHERE ARE THE WATER WAGONS?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The sprinkling of streets, especially in the West End, is only an excuse for such. The sweepers raise volcanoes of dust, which is driven into stores and residences through open doors and windows. Will you kindly call the attention of the proper authorities, through your powerful paper, to remedy this uncomfortable and unhealthy evil?

M. H. T.
West End.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN would like to hear from readers of the paper. We want your ideas. Write a letter occasionally on some current event that interests you. If you see something in the paper that displeases you, let us know about it. If you see something you especially like, tell us, and express your ideas upon it. Letters should be short—not over 250 words—written on one side of the sheet.

MONOPOLY LODGE TAKES IN A ROYAL MEMBER!

The Hen Heroic

By WEX JONES

Experiments have been begun by the Government in the hope of making the American hen lay more eggs.

OH HENS, beware! the powers that hire the coolie,
And calmly brush aside the eight-hour day,
Are after you, to make you toil unduly
And turn your life to one long, strenuous lay.

DEAR Hens, you were not made for contract shackles—
Though you have seldom failed to come to scratch—
But meant, between your gay, exuberant cackles,
To devastate the neighbor's garden patch.

BUT, lo! these men of base, material opinions
Proclaim two eggs a day the one best bet;
And like the sun upon King Ed's dominions,
Poor Hens, you'll never have a chance to "set."

ENOUGH, poor dears, that you should hold communion
For fruitless weeks with some cold china egg;
Oppose this extra shell game; form a union;
Demand your egg-born rights, and cease to beg.

DRAW up a platform to your sisters' liking,
And for ten million egg producers speak—
"We here demand, on pain of instant striking,
'One egg a day—six working days a week.'"

THIS do, dear Hens, and when at last you're stricken
With eggless age, and get it in the necks,
We'll sigh: "She was no incubator chicken,
But brave and free, a credit to her sex."

Notes by the Way

EGGS make a good breakfast dish. They can be cooked in several ways. An egg boiled until it is soft is delicious with bacon or strawberry jam.

* * *

Cultivate the habit of quotation. How much it adds to conversation to bring in the well-chosen words of some master mind of literature. For instance: Smith says he has a hard job. You instantly declaim with fitting gestures:

Life is real, life is earnest,
And a snap is not its goal.

Or Jones hopes the weather will be fine to-morrow. You charm every one present by reciting "'Ostler Joe."

* * *

Remember that so long as you can see a mouse you're safe. It's only when he gets out of sight that he can attack you. In case of danger jump into the bathtub and turn on the boiling water. The most ferocious mouse will not venture to harm you then.

E. Z. MARK IS ELECTED ADMIRAL

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

1. VISITOR—Mr. Mark, I have been appointed to notify you that the members of the Salt Marsh Yachting Association have elected you to be their High Admiral.
MR. E. Z.—My dear sir, the honor overpowers me. I accept the post with full appreciation of its dignity and honor.

2. BUSY CALLER (ten minutes later)—Yes, Mr. Mark, I'm the tailor of the fleet. I have come to measure you for the Admiral's uniform. Goodness me, Mr. Mark, you will cut a heroic figure. See, here is the fashion plate of the uniform.
MR. E. Z.—Dear me; that certainly is stunning.

3. BUSY CALLER—Mr. Mark, I dislike very much to ask you, but money is very tight with me at present. Could you let me have, say one hundred dollars on account? I will need that amount to buy the gold lace.
MR. E. Z.—Say no more, Mr. Tailor; here is the hundred. Now be sure to give me a perfect fit.

4. MRS. MARK (when she returns home a few hours later)—WHAT? ADMIRAL! SALT MARSH YACHT CLUB! You know there is no body of water to float a yacht within a hundred miles of here. E. Z., those two men were confederates. BUNCO STEERERS! E. Z., you have been done again. THAT'S ALL!

MORNING PRAYER

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

LET me to-day do something that shall take
A little sadness from the world's vast store,
And may I be so favored as to make
Of joy's too scanty sum a little more.

Let me not hurt, by any selfish deed
Or thoughtless word, the heart of foe or friend;
Nor would I pass, unseeing, worthy need,
Or sin by silence when I should defend.

However meager be my worldly wealth,
Let me give something that shall aid my kind—
A word of courage, or a thought of health,
Dropped as I pass for troubled hearts to find.

Let me to-night look back across the span
'Twixt dawn and dark, and to my conscience say—
Because of some good act to beast or man—
"The world is better that I lived to-day."

Dinkelspiel on Women Rioting

HOME YESTERDAY.

MEIN LIEBER LOOEY—Ve haf receifed your letter from Buffalo, und ve notice how sorry you vas not to be in Columbus to see der mob vich unvelled a leedle rough house recently.

Mrs. Goosehauser, a friend of your mother's, is yust back from Columbus, und she vas present during der ceremonies.

Mrs. Goosehauser says dot it vas vun of der sveetest riots she efer took part at.

Seferal lady friends of hers lost deir oferskirts; two lost deir pumpadoors; sigs of dem lost deir rats; t'ree of dem lost chewelry; four of dem lost shirtvaists, und dey all lost deir minds.

Der orichinal idea vas for der President's daughter to unveil a statue, but der audience changed its mind und tried to unveil der automobile vich der President's daughter arrived in.

Ven dey found dis vas not practical der audience began to unveil each udder, mit der result dot many faces changed hands.

Mrs. Goosehauser says dot two friends of hers, Faustina Henhaus und Minnie Beerbaden, became so full mit enthusiasm dot dey vished to climb up into der grand stand, mit der result dot Faustina und Minnie vill be at home for a veek picking splinters from deir elbows.

Mrs. Goosehauser says dot annuder friend of hers py der name of Mrs. Beefhelster vas dare mit her pug dog, Gratiano, und dot a strange chentlemans got so eggscited dot he bagan to cheer und threw der pug dog up in der air instead of his hat, mit der result dot ven Gratiano hit der earth his nationality vas changed to a dachshund.

Nefer since der time dot Columbus fairst landed in Ohio has dare been such eggscitement.

Fair vimmens came to der scene looking like a peach und left dare looking like a lemon.

Mrs. Goosehauser says dot Heiney Fitzenstaatz vas dare, und ven he lost his vife in der crowd Heiney began to make google-google eyes at der girls.

Yust den der crowd on der ouldskirts pushed forvard mit der result dot Heiny got a cholt in der back of der neck vich aftervards proved to be his vife.

Heiney is vun of der luffliest characters dot efer blowed a slideless trombone in der orchestra, but his vife says he is alvays doubling up his eyelashes ven he sees a pretty girl.

Heiney tolt her ven dey got home dot it vas only his artistic tempermentals, but she removed der cupboard door py der roots und planted it on his forehead yust vare it leaves der pumpadoor und stands ouid in der sunshine.

Heiney says dey haf deir vooden vedding next veek, und if he gets enough vood to replace dot cupboard door he will hand her a divorce.

Heiney's vife listens to der name of Elsa, und she has a stout figure vich is vide enough to displace fifteen cents vorth of seating capacity in der street cars.

Mrs. Goosehauser says dot der ouldburst in Columbus vas caused py patriotism.

Mebbe so, but I doan'd care abouid der kind of patriotism dot makes you yell for an ambulance. Yours mit luf,

D. DINKELSPIEL.
